Instructor: Mike Foote, EMT-I

Wilderness First Aid is emergency care when delayed transit and limited resources are an issue – any time you are in the backcountry, a rural area or a third world country. Are you hours from a hospital? Are the roads snowed in? Have you backpacked hours away from rescue? Are the only medical resources what you carry on your back? Then you need Wilderness First Aid. This 16 hr course held over 2 days is for those who are in remote areas – away from the usual EMS services. The course expands general first aid to give more detailed information and hands on skills practice o \ for the remote setting – using what you will find in your back pack to care for patients. This Wilderness First Aid class is open to adults and Scouts @ least age 14 may apply. Both days are 8-5, with ½ hr lunch break and bring your own lunch and snacks.
