Its global technology portfolio includes fire suppression, fire detection and mechanical building product offerings sold under many of the world's best-known brands such as ANSUL, GRINNELL, SIMPLEX, and WILLIAMS FIRE & HAZARD CONTROL.

“Safety is at the core of what we do at Tyco. We constructed our regional headquarters in Lansdale, PA under our Zero Harm commitment to provide our products and services in a safe, responsible manner that respects the health and safety of our employees, customers, and the communities where we operate,”

- Colleen Replier, President, Tyco Fire Protection Products

Since relocating to the new location in 2010, the company has made an investment of nearly $10 million in construction and building improvements that include water and electric conservation practices, the use of recycled materials, and an open floor plan that provides for natural light throughout the building. The Lansdale location also provides access to public transportation and parking for carpooling and bikes. The Lansdale building has been Energy Star certified since 2011, and LEED certification is underway. As part of its dedication to global environmental stewardship, Tyco also has five manufacturing locations that operate as 100% Zero Landfill for all waste.

“At Tyco, we have specific environmental objectives but believe that all employees are

Environmental, Health

accountable for our and Safety principles,”

- John Perkins, Sr Director
