President's Message

Before the summer lull sets in, there is a lot going on in the neighborhood. The BCA is hosting or co-hosting four events of interest in June. First, in conjunction with Georgetown University, the student body, Foxhall Village and CAG, the BCA is co-hosting a meeting about the draft of the next campus plan, which will cover the next 20 years. Our community has been steadfastly represented on the Georgetown Community Partnership Steering Committee by Nan Bell. Nan has reported that she is very satisfied with the discussions thus far. The meeting is scheduled for Monday, June 6 at 6:30 pm at St. John's Episcopal Church (3240 O Street).

Next is our spring community clean-up on the morning of Saturday, June 11, as always organized by Janice Sims and supported by Georgetown University. More details are on page 6.

Third, at 7 pm on Thursday, June 16 we will host a community town hall meeting, at the former Corcoran School, devoted to "preserving and safeguarding the neighborhood's character and heritage," according to a by-law amendment recently adopted by the BCA Board. As I wrote in my May President's Message online, a committee—chaired by Carol Baume and Lenore Rubino—has been established to explore the possibility of obtaining historic designation for Burleith. It is important to note 1) that such a status would not be as stringent as Georgetown's, but rather similar to what pertains to Foxhall Village; and 2) the BCA Board has not taken a position on the issue. Rather, the committee is investigating the process, researching the pros and cons, and developing a comprehensive outreach strategy. We now have a dedicated email address for all communications (hd@burleith.org) and there will soon be a page on the BCA website with links to a variety of documents and resources. There is an article on-line (and in this issue of the Bell). The committee has just applied for a grant from the National Trust for Historic Preservation and will also raise funds through the Burleith Community Fund (see donation coupon on page 9). I think it's essential for all homeowners in Burleith to familiarize themselves with the advantages and disadvantages of such a status. We want to hear from you.

Finally, our annual summer picnic will be on June 18 from 3:30-7:30 pm at the Green Lot (Whitehaven and 37th). As in previous years, there will be a band, Rocklands BBQ, a raffle, a "top dog" competition, and fun for all age groups. Mayor Muriel Bowser has accepted our invitation to attend. Please look at our website and page 4 for more details. We could always use volunteers, so if you'd like to help, please email Kay Twomey at burleithevents@gmail.com.

Infrastructure issues continue to be addressed. It appears that the water pipe replacement on 35th Street and Whitehaven Parkway has been completed. We will inquire about better repaving of the road surface. The improvements to 37th Street from Wisconsin Avenue to Reservoir Road will begin around May 26 with sidewalk and curb replacement. This will be followed by re-paving the roadway. New sidewalks and curbs were installed along 39th Street earlier this spring; hopefully the sod in the tree boxes will take root. The test borings for potential green infrastructure in various alleys have been completed, and we are awaiting information on next steps.

The fight against increased airplane noise continues. The courts recently declined the FAA's motion to dismiss the communities' lawsuit. Also, the DC Government has pledged $300,000 for a noise study. Many politicians, including Jack Evans, Eleanor Holmes Norton and even Chris Van Hollen, have expressed their support for the cause. Ed Solomon, our ANC representative, deserves much credit for organizing and pushing this initiative.

Ed Ohl is replacing Walter Hillbrant as the listerv moderator. I'd like to thank Walter for his years of dedicated service.

Finally, many of you—like my wife and me—will be celebrating new graduates from high school, college, middle, or even elementary school. Congratulations to the class of 2016! Good luck with the next stage of your education and life! Your community is really proud of you!

Is Historic Designation Right for Burleith?

By Historic Designation Committee, hd@burleith.org

This is the first in a series of articles about possible historic designation for Burleith. More information will be provided via the website, email, and community meetings.

What? Historic district designation protects and enhances properties significant to the District of Columbia's historic, cultural, and aesthetic heritage. The designation is made by the DC Historic Preservation Review Board if a district meets one or more of these criteria and the community supports the designation. Some 60 DC neighborhoods, including Foxhall Village, Georgetown, Foggy Bottom, Woodley Park, Cleveland Park, Mount Pleasant, and Capitol Hill, have already obtained historic status. Burleith, built primarily in the 1920s–1940s with a distinctive row house style and look, may be a candidate for historic designation.

Why? As we all know, Burleith is a special rowhouse neighborhood—close to all of the wonderful urban action, yet quiet, green, and residential. We also have a generally cohesive aesthetic with Georgian colonial-style homes, mixed with some Tudor elements. Indeed, the Shannon & Luchs development from the 1920s that largely forms Burleith was an innovation in its time and was copied in other cities.

Chaired by Carol Baume and Lenore Rubino, a new committee is exploring the possibility of obtaining historic designation as one way to preserve our unique architectural heritage. Over the next few months, the committee will organize a variety of outreach activities and establish a dedicated webpage to encourage wide community input and address all questions. Please look for emails announcing these efforts. To learn more, please attend the town hall meeting on Thursday, June 16, 7–8:30 pm, at the S&R Foundation Studios located at 1801 35th Street NW (former Fillmore/Corcoran School). Doors open at 6:30 pm for refreshments.

Here is what we already know about historic designations in DC.

What would historic designation mean in practice? Historic designation would mainly affect the front exterior and require it to be in keeping with the current neighborhood style. Essentially, anything visible from the street/public area could not be substantially modified. Any kind of interior renovation is permissible, as are rear additions not visible from the street.

What about the zoning code? Burleith is an R3 zone. As a matter of right, structures can be as tall as 40 feet and have a maximum lot occupancy of 60% (fully attached and semi-detached, i.e., rowhouses) or 40% (all other structures, i.e., fully detached houses). The rear yard requirement is 20 feet. The vast majority of Burleith properties occupy much less than the allowable maximum. This means that anyone can put up third floors and expand their property considerably. At the present time, this can be done as a matter of right, as long as appropriate permits are obtained.

In the past, there have been issues with requests for zoning variances to build taller structures or to occupy more of the property as well as charges of developers “fudging” their permits. Residents’ opinions diverge on the quality of the DC government’s oversight and enforcement of existing laws and regulations.

What about a zoning overlay? Some neighborhoods have implemented overlays. However, the new zoning code is discouraging such requests.

Would it be like Georgetown where lots of reviews are required for renovations? No. It would be like Foxhall Village. Georgetown has national historic designation—a status Burleith does not qualify for. The Old Georgetown Board must approve all Georgetown projects and has considerable power. Burleith would not have this level of oversight.

What about the bureaucratic hassle? All exterior architectural alterations and building permits would need to be approved by the DC Historic Preservation Office. Although most major renovations already require permits, additional permits would have to be procured for items like windows, doors, and roofs. Note, however, that there is an expedited permitting process for small projects like doors or windows. Each historic district has a liaison at the DC Historic Preservation office and a neighborhood preservation committee.

What are the costs? Certain replacement products (e.g., vinyl windows, asphalt shingles instead of original slate) might not be allowed. Some renovation costs might increase. But, we have consistently heard from officials, architects, and homeowners that the historic preservation people are extremely willing to work with homeowners to find appropriate solutions. Modern materials are often approved.

What are the benefits? Research from across the country shows that historic status raises property values by 5–30%. Historic status also acts as a stabilizing factor during property market turmoil. It also sustains the architectural cohesiveness of the neighborhood and mitigates negative impacts on neighbors.

Georgetown Village Fundraiser

By Pat Scolaro

The Georgetown Village (GV) extends a grateful thank you to the donors and supporters who joined with the Village to honor Bob vom Eigen at the annual Georgetown Village Fundraiser.

On May 16, atop The Washington Harbour, Bob was recognized for his commitment and his years of engagement in civic activities in the Georgetown community. A specially designed plaque has a map of Georgetown with Bob's accomplishments highlighted.

The Georgetown Village, which includes Burleith and the surrounding area, is a non-profit organization that provides our communities with services and activities so that neighbors can remain in their own homes and neighborhoods. The funds raised at this event support the Village activities and their Subsidized Membership Program for residents who are unable to afford the annual membership fee. To join the Village, make a gift or become a volunteer, contact Lynn Golub-Rofrano, the Executive Director, at 202-999-8988 or email her at lynn@georgetown-village.org.

Burleith Time Capsule

By Max Langenbacher

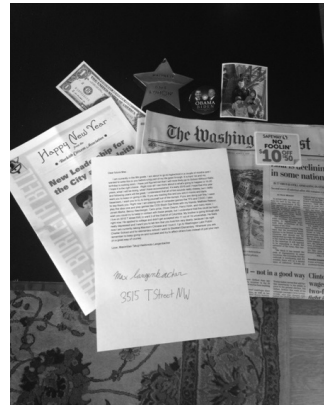

Max

What will future people think about us today? A time capsule is a great way to show what things were like in 2016. I had a lot of fun making one. I put in some personal items, like an award I got from Kumon (for math drills) and a picture of my family when we went to the Eiffel Tower in Paris a couple of years ago. I also wrote a letter about my current life—where I go to school (I'm in 8th grade at Washington Latin), where I live, what I like to do, my family in the US, Canada and Japan, and my friends. I also put a copy of The Washington Post newspaper (with articles about the Zika virus and Hillary Clinton's presidential primary campaign), a copy of The Burleith Bell, a dollar bill (they might not exist in the future!), and an Obama-Biden campaign button. But the most important part of all is that I used an old Thomas the Tank Engine metal lunch box to hold all these things. My brother and I loved playing with those toys when I was a little boy (now I am 14). On April 1, we put the time capsule in the call box at S and 36th Streets and then glued it shut. I look forward to when someone opens the time capsule in 50 or 60 years. I would like to remember who I was in 2016 and compare the future to the present.

Some of the items placed in the time capsule.

Gardening in Burleith: Expanding Your Horizons

By Carol Cavanaugh

Arggh.

This column is being written in the desperate, possibly futile, hope that by the time you read it, this rain will have backed off. Enough already! Rain has brought my garden a jungle of vegetative growth and weeds, but my summer bloomers are mired in depression, setting no more than a few buds for lack of sun. In the hopes that there will, eventually, be summer, I set my figurative pen to figurative paper. I'll share in this column two ways that gardening can connect us to the world outside our own neighborhood.

Did you know that you can get logistical and financial help in making your garden more environmentally friendly? DC's Department of Energy & Environment has established the RiverSmart program. This program, for homes, schools and businesses, helps participants reduce storm water runoff from their properties in part through gardening. For example, trees help to absorb water through their roots, and rain gardens are groupings of smaller plants that just love to soak up large quantities of water in low-lying areas (see the city-created rain garden at the Tunlaw & 37th Street intersection). RiverSmart will give you a choice of appropriate trees for your site, and offer a rebate for installing a tree or rain garden. Rain barrels, to hold water onsite for later use in watering your garden, are also available with a rebate. Similarly, RiverSmart offers rebates and advice on pervious pavement installation. Pervious pavers can replace concrete or slate, thus allowing rainfall to soak in rather than rushing out to foul the Potomac with whatever it picks up along the way. Several Burleith garden club members have already participated in the RiverSmart program, and recommend it.

Admiring the lush garden.

Garden club members met on a chilly May morning to enjoy hot chai and admire Carol Baume's charming garden filled with exotic plants. L-R: Amanda, Rebecca, Massa, Carol B., Forrest, and Carol R.

Speaking of the Burleith garden club, we've decided to move beyond our own neighborhood as well. Several members expressed an interest in helping school kids build and tend a garden. With a little research, we found out that such a program already exists. Friends of the National Arboretum has created the Washington Youth Garden. This program offers lessons to children in grades 3, 4 and 5 at several schools in the area. Those who become interested in gardening come to work on a small plot at the National Arboretum, where they learn the miracles of sowing seed, tending crops, and harvesting food. Like Michelle Obama's work at the White House, this introduction to the natural world can be life-changing for kids. A few members of our garden club plan to volunteer at the Youth Garden. We're also hoping to make a financial contribution to the project through selling some of our seeds and plants. So come see us at the Burleith picnic... you might get a great plant and help a kid discover the earth all at once! What's not to love?

Save the Date! BCA's Neighborhood Spring Cleanup, Saturday, June 11th

Please join other like-minded neighbors on Saturday, June 11 from 9 - 11 am for the annual Spring cleanup to beautify our Burleith community. As with past cleanup events, we'll meet at the 38th Street entrance of Ellington Field at 9 am, fuel up on coffee and breakfast snacks, and then fan out into the neighborhood for the next two hours. You can also help by doing some weeding at Ellington Field. GU will be collecting trash and items that require bulk pick-up. We encourage residents to focus first on their own blocks/alleys and place bagged and bulk trash conspicuously in alleys where GU trucks can collect those items during the cleanup event. We count on support from our regulars to make this event a success. New faces are always welcome, so please bring your neighbors! If you have questions, please feel free to email or call Janice Sims at simsjanice2@gmail.com or 333-6435.

Spotlight on a Student

By Gwen Verhoff

Marek Reznicek, a Burleith resident and 4th grader at Stoddert Elementary, recently received an award from Letters About Literature, a reading and writing contest for students in grades 4 to 12, sponsored by DC Center for the Book and the DC Public Library in collaboration with the Library of Congress. He wrote a letter to the author of Not For Parents USA: Everything You Ever Wanted to Know, Lynette Evans (Lonely Planet).

Marek agreed to answer some questions about the contest and his interests.

Who gave you this book?

Some Czech friends who had been living in Washington and were moving to San Francisco. As I said in my letter, it turned out to be a wonderful book that changed my life and got me interested in geography.

You said in your letter to the author that you are very interested in geography. What are your top three places to visit in the future?

Australia, to see the Sydney Opera House and the wildlife; Tokyo, because it's the biggest city in the world and to see Mt. Fuji; and Iceland, to see the glaciers and because it is not densely populated.

What do you prefer, fiction or non-fiction?

Do you like reading an actual book or using a Kindle or other device? I like non-fiction, especially history. I like books because you don't have to worry about charging them, losing text or damaging the device.

Will this experience inspire you to write more?

Yes, it really boosted my confidence.

And do you prefer to write by hand or on the computer?

I like writing on the computer because it is faster and you can save your work; you don't have to worry about paper getting ripped or lost. I learned how to write cursive in first grade in the Czech Republic, but now I mostly print.

What is something that people might be surprised to know about you?

When I was in second grade, I used to hate writing and reading. Now I realize that you can be inspired by reading and then inspire others by writing.

Is there an author you would like to have dinner with? Yes, R.J. Palacio; I like especially Wonder and Auggie & Me. These stories inspire me, and if I enter this contest again next year, this is the author I will write to.

Georgetown Village Increases Health-Care Related Service Offerings

By Lynn Golub-Rofrano

Georgetown Village (GV) has worked with Iona Senior Services to create a Friendly Companion Hospital Visitation Program for their members. This service, coupled with the Medical Note Taking service, based on the program developed by Iona and Northwest Neighbors Village, is expanding our member services in health care.

Georgetown Village and Iona offered a 'Train the Trainer' workshop for all the area Villages in April, and in May trained our own volunteers on these services. The new services are being offered beginning in June and this will offer members the ability to have someone take notes at doctor's appointments and provide social support and companionship if they are hospitalized. Although our volunteers will not be medical advocates, it is our hope that they will provide emotional comfort as well as help in very practical ways, such as contacting family members, jotting down information for members, delivering books and reading material to the hospital, etc.

Village volunteers will continue to provide our usual household help outside the hospital, bringing things from home, providing transportation to medical appointments, pet care arrangements, grocery shopping, and picking up prescriptions. After hospitalization, GV will continue to work with the member to provide support.

These new services are part of Georgetown Village's constantly expanding list of services as the Village constantly evaluates its members' needs and develops training for volunteers to be able to meet these needs. Contact Georgetown Village at 202-999-8988 if you have any questions about these services or if you are interested in becoming a member or volunteer.
