

Johann Sebastian Bach

Vor deinen Thron tret ich hiermit

(Wenn wir in höchsten Nöten sein)

BWV 688

Arranged for piano by Andrei Strizek

www.andreistrizek.com

Vor deinen Thron tret ich hiermit

(Wenn wir in höchsten Nöten sein)

BWV 688

Johann Sebastian Bach

arr. Andrei Strizek

Adagio

sempre legato

The first system of the score shows measures 1 through 4. The key signature is one sharp (F#), and the time signature is 4/4. The tempo is marked 'Adagio'. The instruction 'sempre legato' is written below the first staff. The music features a flowing melody in the right hand and a supporting bass line in the left hand.

5 8

The second system of the score shows measures 5 through 8. The notation continues with the same melodic and harmonic development. Measure numbers 5 and 8 are indicated at the beginning and end of the system respectively.

9 12

tr.

rit. a tempo

The third system of the score shows measures 9 through 12. A trill (tr.) is marked above a note in measure 10. The tempo marking 'rit. a tempo' appears below the staff in measure 11, indicating a slight deceleration followed by a return to the original tempo.

13

The fourth system of the score shows measures 13 through 16. The music concludes with a final cadence. The measure number 13 is indicated at the beginning of the system.

16

19

20

22

23

rit. a tempo

26

29

30

rit. a ...

4

33

... tempo

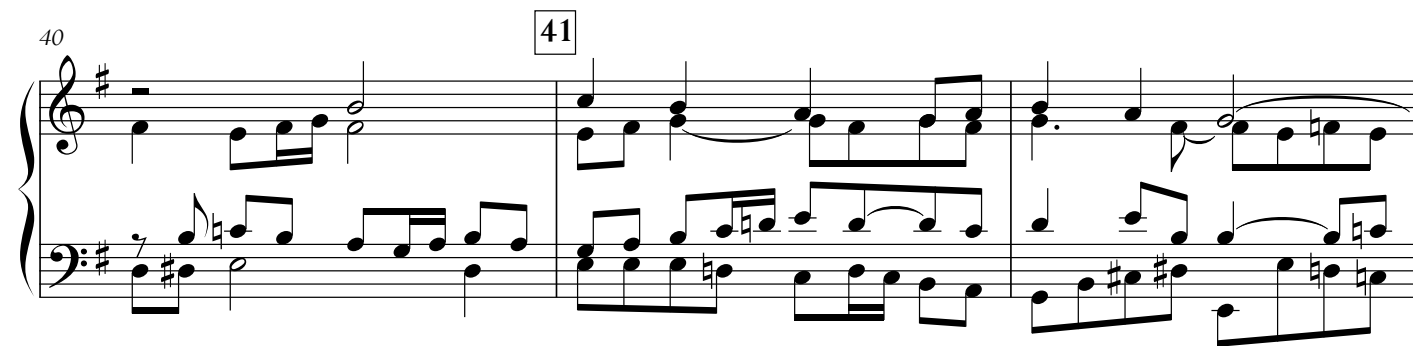

37

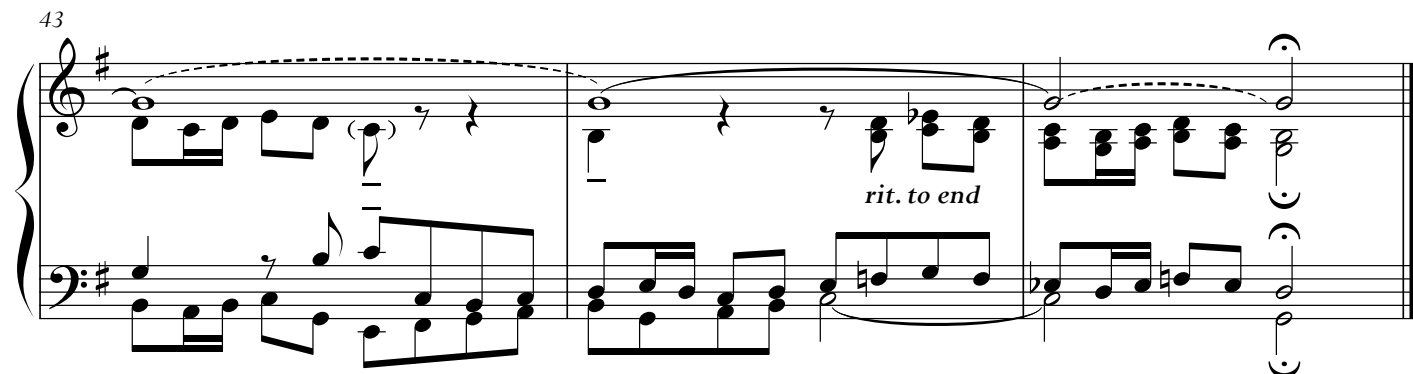

40

41

43

rit. to end

Vor deinen Thron tret ich hiermit is most often performed at the end of Bach's Die Kunst der Fuge (The Art of Fugue). Legends say that this was dictated from Bach's death bed; most likely that isn't true, although it adds the poignancy of the final, unfinished fugue that comes before this. Bach had actually set this tune earlier in his life, in Wenn wir in höchsten Nöten sein. This version, while not actually containing any true fugues, is full of counterpoint, inversions, stretto, all the while providing undulating interludes and accompaniment to the cantus firmus. Like many hymntunes, there are several different sets of lyrics. The choice of the title Vor deinen Thron tret ich hiermit – and thus implying the choice of those lyrics – could give us insight to Bach and how he felt during the end of his life:

Before your throne I now appear,
O God, and bid you humbly:
Turn not your gracious face
From me, a poor sinner.

Confer on me a blessed end,
On the last day awaken me,
Lord, that I may see you eternally;
Amen, amen, hear me.

In choosing to arrange this for piano, I did not want to take many liberties; I kept it as close to the urtext as possible. The editorial marks I did make can be treated as such. One of the things I love most about Bach is how open to interpretation his music is. A smart pianist will make good decisions when it comes to performing this piece.

There are several recordings of this piece, for various instruments or ensembles, and I encourage you to listen to them as you craft your own interpretation of this beautiful, contrapuntal chorale.

Please be in touch if you perform this piece. I would love to hear from you.

Pax,
Andrei Strizek

1 December 2014
www.andreistrizek.com