

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Portland, OR - April 14th, 2015 -

One Grand Gallery, a contemporary art and design gallery, is excited to present international designer and artist, Craig Redman's Third Parties. For the month of May, One Grand will help facilitate Redman's exploration of privacy and the shaping of one's online legacy in our digital age.

Hailing from Australia and working in New York City, Redman's global influence has reached from Parisian superstores to Chengdu street installations. Redman's design work reflects a bold, graphic, pared-down aesthetic that carries over into his artwork. He is particularly known for his portraiture that has included Barack Obama, Michelangelo Antonioni, Woody Allen and LeBron James. Redman also illustrates a cult hit blog called Darcel Disappoints.

Redman's May exhibition, Third Parties, will showcase Redman's portraiture and comment on privacy in a media-saturated world. Redman grapples with how much of one's identity can be erased before a person's true self is masked or freshly created. The uniformly sized portraits of his friends and acquaintances represents a mini society that are then partially obscured with oversized graphic shapes, alluding to the question of how much of our personalities are abstracted and how much is revealed.

Redman addresses the current state of our online culture by lifting the mask of online anonymity. It's fundamentally a matter of authenticity and the power of the individual to shape one's own history. One Grand Gallery invites you to enter the matrix and explore the boundaries of identity in cyberspace.
