

Cornelia Dai

Cornelia Dai is a partner at Hadsell Stormer & Renick LLP, a plaintiff-side law firm in Pasadena, California. Ms. Dai specializes in employment law and civil rights, with a focus on class actions and complex litigation. She has litigated a wide range of matters, including workplace harassment and discrimination, whistleblowing, wrongful termination, wage and hour violations, improper work conditions, and free speech infringement. Notable cases include Wang v. Chinese Daily News, a class action involving violations of overtime and meal and rest break laws by a Chinese-language newspaper company. Ms. Dai was also one of the plaintiffs' counsel in South Central Farmers Feeding Families v. City of Los Angeles, a case brought on behalf of over 300 low-income families in a struggle to preserve land for a much-needed urban community garden in South Los Angeles. In addition, she was one of the Doe plaintiffs' counsel in the state litigation of the international human rights case Doe v. Unocal, which involved human rights abuses by a large oil company against Burmese villagers.

Ms. Dai has been named to the Southern California Super Lawyers[®] list as a Rising Star or Super Lawyer each year since 2005, and has been listed in The Best Lawyers in America every year since 2012. In 2011, she was selected as one of the Top 75 Labor & Employment Lawyers in California by the Daily Journal. Ms. Dai serves on the Board of the California Employment Lawyers Association (CELA) and the Foundation for Advocacy, Inclusion and Resources (FAIR). She is also an active member of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles County Bar Association's Labor and Employment Law section and the Executive Advisory Council of Asian Americans Advancing Justice - Los Angeles (Advancing Justice – LA).

Ms. Dai is a graduate of U.C. Berkeley, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology. She earned her Juris Doctorate from U.S.C. Law School.