General Membership Meeting with Kathleen Bander

It's a Bird, It's a Plane, No It's a Bat

An unexpected up-close encounter with a little brown bat was the beginning of Kathleen Bander's fascination with bats. Trying to find more information about Northwest bats and the people who were knowledgeable about them, alerted her to the fact that there was no regional entity with the goal of protecting this most misunderstood and maligned mammal. Recognizing the need, she enlisted the help of a diverse group of volunteers, and Bats Northwest, a non-profit conservation group, was formed in 1998.

Kathleen will introduce the basics about bats: their biology, echolocation, feeding, life cycle, and habitats. Benefits of bats to humans, as well as the threats of humans to bats, will be covered, and the real story of bats and rabies will be told. The presentation will include information about bats around the world, with a special focus on bats of the Northwest. A properly designed bat house will be shown, with information on how to site it. There will also be stuffed bats for some close-up views.

Bats Northwest and its dedicated members reach out to the public through schools, libraries, garden and recreational groups, service organizations, festivals, and conventions. It contributes to and helps coordinate research efforts, and participates in regional planning and conservation efforts.

Pearrygin Lake Campout and Field Trips

Thursday afternoon - Sunday morning, June 1-4

Steven Harper, Secretary

Our tenth annual NCAS Campout will be held at Pearrygin Lake State Park group camp with great people, great weather and of course great birding. There is lots of room for people with tents. Vans or pickup toppers are allowed in the parking area. RVs and trailers are not allowed. Picnic tables and grates are available for cooking (bring your own food) and water and a toilet are on site. A swimming area is also on site to enjoy after a warm day of birding. Showers and full service bathrooms can be accessed 1½ miles away in the main campground. Anyone not enamored with or unable to stay in the group camp site can make reservations in the main campground or stay at a motel in the Winthrop area.

Of course the primary focus of the campout is birds. Field trips, led by leaders familiar with the area, will be scheduled for Saturday and Sunday. Campers are free to roam on their own on Thursday and Friday. There will be plenty of time for lounging and enjoying the sunny and clear weather and for visiting. In past years a number of people have brought their musical instruments and we have had a sing-along each evening. Cost is $10/night for each party.

Reservations are required. If you want to make a reservation or if you have any questions please email or call Steven Harper at stevenharper2@msn.com and 360-650-9065.

Red Light to Starboard: Recalling the Exxon Valdez Disaster

With author Angela Day

Thursday May 25, 2017; 6:30-8:30 pm
Bellingham Unitarian Church:
1207 Ellsworth St., Bellingham

Angela Day, PhD, will offer a book reading, presentation, and Q&A session on her book, Red Light to Starboard: Recalling the Exxon Valdez Disaster. This book documents a tragic event that stunned the world, discusses the disaster's environmental impacts, and recounts the regional and natural history of Prince William Sound. Day's book won the Western Writers of America 2015 Spur Award in the Best Western Contemporary Nonfiction category, and was a finalist in the annual Forward Reviews' INDIEFAB Book of the Year Awards.

Angela Day lives in Snohomish, Washington, and is married to Bobby Day, a long-time fisherman from Prince William Sound. The book centers on his story and that of his family, whose history is deeply rooted in the region. Nearly 100 years ago, the Day family settled on the edge of Valdez Bay where they carved out a small town, salmon cannery, and sawmill from remains of an old army fort. Based on a wealth of family history and first-hand experiences, the book offers a deeply personal account of the oil spill's impacts on individual lives and local communities.

This topic is keenly relevant to our community. "I hope to provide some insights about what the past can teach us about the future," said Angela Day. "Whatcom County residents are faced with a potentially large increase in crude oil tanker traffic in the Salish Sea due to the proposed expansion of the Kinder Morgan Mountain pipeline project."

The Kinder Morgan project, terminating in Vancouver, will nearly triple capacity along an existing line from Edmonton, Alberta, to Burnaby, B.C., from about 300,000 barrels per day to about 890,000 barrels per day. "I especially look forward to having a discussion about lessons learned and how they apply to the risks in the Salish Sea today," Day said.

The presentation is co-sponsored by RE Sources for Sustainable Communities and the North Cascades Audubon Society. "We are really excited to host Angela's presentation here in Bellingham," said Lee First, North Sound Baykeeper with RE Sources for Sustainable Communities.

RE Sources for Sustainable Communities works to promote sustainable communities and protect the health of northwestern Washington's people and ecosystems through application of science, education, advocacy and action. North Cascades Audubon Society has represented the interests and importance of wildlife, habitat and the environment in Whatcom County since 1970.

May Field Trips Ken Salzman, Field Trip Chair

Spring is getting into full swing in the month of May. Rufous hummingbirds have returned along with swallows, and the melodies of songbirds have become evident. Toward the end of the month nesting will begin, and bird finding will become easier as numbers and vocalizations increase. So join us on our field trips and enjoy spring birding in the great Northwest.

Our field trips are open to everyone regardless of membership in NCAS. Our goal is to provide quality field trips that provide enjoyment and education for all levels of birders. Our field trip leaders, and many of the participants, are enthusiastic about answering questions and helping everyone to focus in on the birds we encounter.

While the weather is greatly improved, it is still important to dress appropriately. There's nothing like being wet and uncomfortable to ruin an otherwise great day of birding. And depending on the venue, you may want to include insect repellent!

Board of Directors Meeting Agenda

April 3, 2017, 7:00 PM

Board Members Present: Pam Borso, Paul Woodcock, Kelley Palmer-McGee, Steve Irving, Judy Kreiger, Steven Harper, Sue Parrott, Jamie Huson, Nicole Huson, Chris Brewer, Twink Coffman, and Ken Salzman

1. Additions to Agenda- Added below.

2. Approval of March Minutes – Approved by the board.

3. Treasurer's Report- Sue explained the report and it was accepted by the board. Benevity (the administrator for the companies that are matching donations for our members) made a pitch for Apple Pay and Jamie will investigate to see if it has value to NCAS for use as a payment option and whether it will work on our website.

4. Communications & Input

Newsletter – Kelley asked everyone about items they intend to submit for the next newsletter. She reminded everyone that the info needs to be submitted by April 15.

Wings Over Water Event update- Because of the rain it seemed that attendance was lower than in the past at many of the events although Chris had lots of people at her presentation. We will await more information.

Carol Roberts has resigned from the board and has appreciated all of the experience and interactions through the years on the board. We appreciate all of her assistance as a host for the meetings and the holiday party as well as other contributions.

Mature trees letter to City of Bellingham update – Rae finished the letter and it was sent to all of the people at the City that were recommended by Rae and the rest of the board.

Museum update: Audubon will be at the Museum from 2-4pm on the 4th Sundays in May – August. Pam is looking for volunteers for May 28, June 25 (Paul), July 23(Sue and Steven), and Aug 27.

Washington Ornithological Society (WOS) annual conference update- Ken is still looking for a few field trip leaders for this event to be held at Semiahmoo, Sept 21-25.

Google Doc update – Jamie has submitted information to Google to see what they can offer for a cloud storage system for all of Audubon's documents. She is waiting to hear back.

April 29 - Backyard Habitat and Native Flora Fair at Village Green – Sue, Steven, Judy, Paul and Chris have volunteered to attend this event.

Climate Group update- Sue has found volunteers to be at the Farmer's Market for every shift this spring (April 15 and May 20). Stands, displays and materials have been developed for the tabling.

Background Checks Account Application – Pam is waiting to hear from the Washington State Patrol (WSP).

Waiver liability form – There were concerns by Ken about using these forms since he feels it is duplicating the intent of our liability insurance coverage and would be difficult to manage. After discussion, the board agreed to try using the forms to see how they work.

New meeting room needed for board meetings – WECU will be converting the Education Center into offices in April so we will be having meetings in the old Baskin Robbins building through June. The board decided to use the Unitarian Fellowship Hall as our new meeting space beginning sometime after June.

The Audubon NW meeting is June 17. A lot of people would like to attend and Pam is looking into possibly having the date changed to accommodate higher attendance from our board.

We will be co-sponsoring a presentation, along with RE Sources, on May 25 at 6:30 pm at the Unitarian Fellowship Hall. The presentation and reading is by Angela Day author of the book Redlight to Starboard: Recalling the Exxon Valdez Disaster.

Whatcom Land Trust survey update – Steven gave an update on the meeting he and Paul had last week with WLT's Rich Bowers and Eric Carabba. WLT is very pleased with the survey work to date. They would like to expand coverage on some of the properties that are in areas where expanded purchases or conservation easement activity may occur. We discussed prioritizing the areas depending on the ability to recruit surveyors and possible grant funding in the future (especially from the Cornell Lab of Ornithology) to facilitate our efforts.

5. Old Business

Swan taxidermy update – Paul has not talked to the taxidermist lately but noted that we will need a plaque to go along with the swan in the display. Paul will coordinate this and wants everyone to think about what we should inscribe on the plaque.

Membership software – Jamie will keep investigating this but did not work on this during the past month.

Scholarship for WCC Community Ed Birding classes – Ken talked to WCC and they agreed to put the blurb regarding the scholarship in their catalog for the fall quarter. Nicole will develop the application form and bring it to the board. Nicole will be also be the lead person deciding on potential scholarships for the eligible class members.

City of Ferndale bird walk May 10 – Pam is looking for volunteers to help lead a bird walk. Paul agreed to assist. Judy is a possibility as well.

Whatcom Land Trust Bird Survey Summary for 2015 and 2016

Project Description

Bird surveys were initiated in 2015 on twelve Whatcom Land Trust (WLT) properties and three Whatcom County Parks & Recreation (WCPR) properties with conservation easements held by WLT. The WLT properties included Bottiger's Pond, California Creek, Catalyst, Edfro Creek Preserve, Ladies of the Lake, Maple Creek Reach, North Fork Eagle, Port Blakely, Riverstead, Samish River Headwaters, Fenton Tract, and Kelsey. The WCPR properties included Squires Lake Park, Lily Point Marine Park, and Point Whitehorn Marine Reserve.

North Cascades Audubon Society (NCAS) recruited 20 birders to work in pairs, surveying their assigned properties three times a year: during spring migration (early May), breeding season (June), and fall migration (September). Surveys were continued in 2016 and will likely continue in 2017 and into the foreseeable future. These surveys will give WLT and NCAS baseline data on bird species and numbers, enabling us to track changes over time and to identify properties with species of significant concern or importance. The data may also support future grant requests and guide decisions about habitat enhancement, especially if critical species are found.

Results

In 2015 a total of 116 species of birds were observed on the properties surveyed, with 128 species in 2016. 104 species were observed in both 2015 and 2016, 12 species were observed only in 2015, and 16 species only in 2016. The largest number of species and greatest diversity were found at Ladies of the Lake, Riverstead, Samish River Headwaters, Catalyst, Lily Point, and California Creek (see accompanying table). All of these properties have a number of features favorable to birds, including wetlands, expanses of water, flowing water, forests, and openings such as fields.

Given that the survey is only two years old, it's difficult to describe any trends or to point to specific species or properties that deserve special attention. However, a good start would be to look more closely at those properties with the largest number of species and greatest diversity. Another year's results should allow WLT and NCAS to better understand the data.

For a list of all bird species seen at each of the surveyed sites, go to our website:
www.northcascadesaudubon.org/whatcom-land-trust-bird-survey-summary-2017

6. New Business

Go Solar – Pam described a contact with someone working on a campaign to pass a solar resolution at the Bellingham City Council. She asked them to send us more information regarding the role we might play.

Summer board meetings – We will not be having a June board meeting and may skip July as well if we don't have any urgent business to attend to.

7. Committee Reports as needed

Education Committee

Birds & Brews – The Audubon sponsored event will be Saturday, May 20 with Jamie and Nicole coordinating. Others are invited to participate. Board members were asked to help distribute the great posters that were designed and produced for the event.

Scudder Pond walk April 7 at 9:30 am – Everyone is welcome to help out. Chris has put a great deal of effort into planning the event. People coming to the walk will be divided up into groups depending on skill level and age.

The committee is looking at two autumn activities to be held in rural Whatcom County. Chris has contacted Wild Whatcom and the Whatcom County Library System regarding programs in the future.

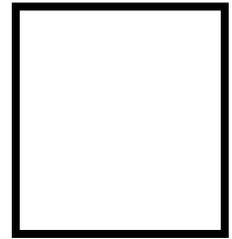

Nominating Committee – Nicole will be the nomination committee. Nominations must be in the May newsletter.
