

Shropshire Star Friday, July 18, 2014

COSINES Oscillations

Fuzzed-up, utterly modern indie pop is the order of the day on this lo-fi release from the recently-formed, diy-sters Cosines. Having played alongside Comet Gain, Seapony, The Pooh Sticks and others, the mathematically-inclined pop duo are set fair. Oscillations is a delightful mix of electronic sounds and fuzzy guitars. Cranky old Moogs and Roland synths sit side-by-side with distorted guitars, like some kind of metronomic pop with a Krautrock chaser. If you're looking for comparisons, think of Love, United States of America and the much-missed Stereolab. Synth riffs, pulsating rhythms and crunching guitars with occasional New Order-esque swashes of sound.

7/10

