

Built in 1858, the Monkton Hotel is a nationally registered historic landmark, sitting within walking distance of the Gunpowder River and the NCR trail, which is perfect for hiking and long bike rides all the way to Pennsylvania.

The Hotel is nearly equidistant between York and Baltimore, sitting alongside Monkton Station and the former York Pennsylvania rail line, a perfect stopping point for merchants, soldiers and travelers. As a respite from the pollution and noise of both cities, the Hotel also sits in the heart of My Lady's Manor, a vast tract of land with rolling hills for horseback riding and fox hunting.

The Hotel also once housed the Monkton Post Office as part of the Monkton Village, which included the Town Hall across the street. The building has been a home for many families, and now serves as a home for tenants who live here, a bike and tube rental, a yoga studio, two AirBnBs and this cafe.
