

Immigrant Student and Parent Rights at School

⇒ ALL CHILDREN have the right to attend public school, and schools cannot ask for immigration status as a condition of enrollment.

⇒ It is illegal for schools to discriminate against students or parents based on national origin, including students and parents that are undocumented.

Student Rights

- Students are not required to have a Social Security number or a U.S. birth certificate to attend a public school. Districts can require proof only of where you live, for example a phone bill or letter from a landlord.
- Generally, youths through the age of 21 have the right to enroll in public schools within Massachusetts.
- Students have the right to feel safe from bullying, harassment or violence from other students, teachers and school staff.
- If English is not a student's primary language, schools are required to provide support so that he or she can learn.
- Students that have a special need that affects their ability to learn may have the right to receive special education services from the school district. To determine eligibility for services, parents may request an evaluation, which should be conducted in the student's primary language.

Parent Rights

- Parents have the right to review their children's school records. A public school may only share a student's records with others, including police, with parent consent or if a court requires it.
- Parents have the right to receive written and oral communication from their child's school in their primary language. They should be provided a qualified interpreter and all documents in their language, free of charge and without delay.
