Class Notes
Greetings! Dublin School is a special place. Each year I find myself inspired by the level of commitment our faculty and staff demonstrate each day through their unstinting efforts with our students. Whether it is in the classroom, on the athletic fields or on the stage, our students are the direct beneficiaries of an immensely talented and equally dedicated group of teachers who challenge them intellectually while supporting their needs in and out of the classroom.

The generosity exhibited by the members of our Dublin School family also inspires me. As you read your Dubliner, I hope you too feel a sense of pride in what has been accomplished by the remarkable gifts of alumni, parents, trustees, faculty, staff, and friends of Dublin School. Their generous, ongoing support helps to make our many successes possible.

Enjoy this winter edition of The Dubliner. It is meant to inform you as well as to offer an invitation to be involved in the life of the School. On behalf of the trustees, faculty, staff, and students, we welcome your participation.

With my thanks and appreciation for all that you are doing to help us, and best wishes,

Christopher R. Horgan
Headmaster
Dublin School 2006
Academic Awards

■ SCOTT C. O’NEIL AWARD
Jesse Germain ’07, Bedford, NH
This award is given in memory of Scott O’Neil, who died in a motorcycle accident after his junior year, to that member of the junior class who, in the opinion of the faculty, best exemplifies the spirit of Dublin School.

■ PAUL W. LEHMANN AWARD
Seong-Ho Hong ’06, Seoul City, Korea
(Pictured right)
This award is named after Dublin’s founding headmaster and is given by the faculty to that member of the graduating class who best exemplifies sturdiness of character, academic vigor, and excellence of influence in all areas of school life.

■ WELLESLEY BOOK AWARD
Vanessa Martinez ’07, Bronx, NY
This award is given to that woman who, in the opinion of the faculty, is Dublin’s strongest female member of the junior class, a young woman who has made an outstanding contribution to her school in terms of leadership, citizenship and scholastic achievement.

■ DARTMOUTH ALUMNI CLUB BOOK AWARD
Emily Merrifield ’08, Nelson, NH
This award is given to a sophomore who excels in English and is involved in extra-curricular activities. The book is given by the Dartmouth Alumni.

■ H. WILLIAM EVANS COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD
Scott Olsen ’07, Marlborough, NH
The faculty determines this award. The criteria include a demonstrated strong sense of commitment to community service and the potential to become a leader in the Dublin School community

■ H. WILLIAM EVANS FACULTY AWARD
Michelle Knapp, Dublin, NH
The recipient of the faculty Achievement Award is determined by the Headmaster based on the accomplishments of the teacher or staff member who, in the opinion of the Headmaster, deserves the honor. Criteria for the award normally include effort and achievement beyond the call of duty.
Headmaster Christopher Horgan welcomed everyone to Dublin School’s 70th Commencement. He acknowledged the accomplishments, struggles and growth of the Class of 2006. Noting that their thoughts may already be turning to the summer months and beyond, he urged them for just awhile to focus on that day and that moment. And as last words of advice he exhorted them to “read…develop good health habits…strive to be around people who respect, challenge, and love you…and to separate the truth from an almost incalculable number of sources of bad information.” In concluding, he honored the Class of 2006 by reading an excerpt from Emerson’s Monadnock.

Arts Department Chair Jan Haman was selected by the Class of 2006 to give the Goodbye to Seniors. Not surprising for those who know Jan, she focused on passion, caring, laughing, and having opinions. She spoke of the uniqueness of Dublin School, sharing many special memories of the Class of 2006 and concluded by telling the graduates “you can make the difference…do your best…care about your communities; care about others’ children. Do it for yourselves, your own kids, your country.”

Genesis Mullins thanked the School community for the support and friendship that it always provided. She thanked her classmates for their “individualities and differences that allowed me to open my eyes to different ideas and objective ways to thinking.” She also thanked her teachers for “their unconditional efforts to teach and evoke a fire in me to want to learn more.”

Lisa Cameron urged her classmates to “use truth to develop your identity in the bigger world” and to “have courage to face the opportunities and challenges that may arise.” She asked the Class of 2006 to “leave Dublin knowing this phase in your life is over, but another is about to start…look back on this experience and treasure it…remember who you were when you came here, and see who you are now, as you leave.”
Spring '07 Admission Report by Sheila Bogan, Admission Director

The Admissions office has been extremely busy this past year! We produced a recruitment DVD that has been given to prospective students, educational consultants and placement directors at schools across the country. We worked closely with a company out of Boston, Fields of Vision, to film and produce this project. By all accounts, everyone is extremely pleased with the results and the consensus is that it accurately depicts “The Dublin Difference”.

The international enrollment market is very strong in the boarding school world today, and Dublin has the opportunity to develop unique connections in some countries for which we have not previously enrolled students. Most international students that we have contact with come through educational consultants. Therefore, in my two years here, I have concentrated a lot of my efforts on developing good relationships with these consultants. This strategy seems to be paying off because this year we have students from eight countries, including Korea, Mexico, Chile and China. These developments have prompted additional international travel for both the Headmaster, Chris Horgan, and me.

While in Korea, we met with many of our current students’ parents to show our appreciation and to answer any of their concerns. Currently, Korea seems to have the largest number of students studying at boarding schools in the US. American boarding schools have been getting very large numbers of Korean applications. I believe visiting with these parents has helped us to understand more of the culture and the issues facing Korean families. While in Tokyo the Headmaster and I met with educational consultants to try and revive a Japanese market that has dwindled over the years, mainly because of the economic struggles they have faced. Chris and I are also making a trip to Chile this spring with a current student from Santiago. Benjamin, a sophomore, loves his experience at Dublin and wants to help us recruit other Chilean students so they can experience the same level of independence, academic stimulation and excitement that a school like Dublin can provide.

While in China, we were hosted by an educational consultant who is looking to expand Dublin School’s relationship with Chinese schools through student and teacher exchange programs. On February 1st, our Chinese consultant arranged for 18 students and two teachers from the Experimental High School attached to Beijing Normal University to spend the day at Dublin School. We were treated to performances by some of their students and an interactive question and answer session about various aspects of Chinese and American culture. The admissions office interviewed six prospective students for next year while they were on campus.

This is an exciting time at Dublin School with new ideas, new faces and new energy! There is a strong commitment from the Admissions office to keep Dublin School competitive among our peer boarding schools. We are excited about what the future holds!

Introducing New Dublin School Faculty

Brian Bouton

When it comes to a question about U.S. History, Brian Bouton is sure to know the answer. A native Floridian, Brian attended the University of Maryland’s Japanese campus where he majored in Asian History. Some of his interests include photography, foreign affairs and traveling, which he has done extensively. California, Japan, Alaska and Texas are some of the places where he has spent time. Now at Dublin, where he and his wife Erin chose to come largely because of the location and special feeling that he got from no other school, Brian is looking forward to doing many new things, including teaching, coaching and being a dorm parent—all in a day’s work. His largest goal at the moment is to successfully incorporate the Harkness method of teaching, which is focused around a student-centered discussion, into the Dublin School curriculum.

Erin Bouton

Living outside of Florida for the first time in her life, Erin Bouton, joins the Dublin faculty as a tutor in the Learning Skills Department and a coach on the tennis courts. After graduating from Florida State University at Tallahassee and teaching history at a public high school, Erin decided it was time for a change. On top of her tutoring and coaching responsibilities, she is really looking forward to the other unique aspects of life at Dublin School, such as the Winterfest and Mayfair celebrations. And above all else, she promises to bring much enthusiasm of being in a new place.

Nicholas Christianson

From Anchorage, Alaska where he grew up, to Willamette University in Oregon where he received a BA in political science, to Los Olivos, California where he worked at Midland School, and now to Dublin School as the assistant director of admission, Nick Christianson has covered a lot of ground. Happy to be a part of Dublin, Nick is looking forward to living in a New England setting and interacting with students, something he will have the opportunity to do through the admission process as well as his role of dorm parent and lacrosse coach. This is important, he believes, because good faculty-student relations build a tight-knit community and are an essential part of a school. Fortunately for the Dublin community, Nick has a good feeling about how things work here.

Jessica Lapham Harrison

Helping with the school play, organizing the Dubliners, and teaching various music classes are some of the things that Jessica Laphman Harrison will find herself doing now that she is here at Dublin School as the Music Director. Living most recently in Hillsborough, New Hampshire where she taught music in the public school for seven years, Jessica now resides on campus with her husband Jeff, the network administrator, and children, Reilly 5, Liam 3½ and McKenzie 2. Having attended Plymouth State University where she obtained a BS in music education, Jessica is now looking to spread her love of music through the Dublin School community. Helping the music department grow and introducing new aspects of music to students are two of her current goals. Besides music, Jessica also enjoys cooking, and spreads her passion through her association with The Pampered Chef as a consultant.

Bill Horton

Joining the Learning Skills Department as a tutor this year, Bill Horton brings a rich background of teaching experience. After attending Berea College in Kentucky as an undergraduate, he then went on to Yale
University’s Divinity school where he received a master of divinity degree followed by a PhD in sociology from the University of Kentucky. Now, after teaching at the college level for nearly twenty years, Bill steps into the smaller learning atmosphere of Dublin School. He finds working with young people “fascinating” and he loves to help them learn new things. Most importantly, though, Bill wants his students to look at themselves in a new way in order to pull out their most significant individual values. This, he believes, is very important at a high school level.

Emily Leary

Coming most recently from six years of teaching at Colorado Academy in Denver, Emily Leary joins the Dublin team as a member of the history department. Currently she teaches Ancient Worlds and Modern European History while also coaching intramural sports and serving as a Wing and Hollow dorm parent. This coming spring, coaching girls’ lacrosse is at the top of her list. Originally from New York, Emily received a BA in social studies from Ithaca College and then went on to achieve her masters in history from the University of Montana. Following this, she taught in places such as Las Vegas, Nevada and even Tajikistan. Now that she has found the close-knit community by a lake, Dublin, that she has been looking for, she is excited about the variety of outdoor activities provided in the area and sharing them with Dublin students.

Kate Robbins

Coming from a public high school in Pennsylvania where she helped struggling students make it to graduation, Kate Robbins is now ensuring Dublin graduates a brighter future through her teaching of Algebra II and Statistics. Originally from Western Massachusetts, Kate went on to Lafayette College where she majored in mathematics while contributing to college through the student activities program. Now at Dublin, she looks forward to being part of a boarding school, playing the roles of advisor, dorm parent and coach in addition to teaching, while pursuing specific areas of math through her teaching. Also, her return to New England will enable the growth of interests such as biking, while also making it easier to see her family, with whom she is very close.

Rovena Robinson

Returning to Dublin School, this time as the director of the Learning Skills program, Rovena Robinson brings a wealth of knowledge and experience in both guidance and counseling. Originally from upstate New York, she went on to seek a BA in history from the University of New Hampshire and a Masters in guidance and counseling from Antioch New England Graduate School. This education was then followed by twenty-three years of experience leading up to 2006. After six years of retirement that she called “boring,” Rovena is enjoying being back at Dublin and is looking forward to having a more academic involvement with the school and students.

Hong “Jung” Yun ’02

Once again, Jung Yun returns to Dublin School, but this time as a teacher of psychology and photography, coach, and dorm parent in Wing and Hollow. Originally from South Korea, Jung came to the States to attend Dublin School and continued her stay here by attending Boston University where she earned a BA in psychology. When the opportunity to return to Dublin appeared, she couldn’t pass it up, saying it was like “coming back home.” In her new role, Jung will work with many international students while pursuing interests such as landscape photography, snowboarding and travel.
The Perkin Fund Grant
To Improve the Teaching of Science

It is a great pleasure to share very good news about the teaching of science at the School. Earlier this fall, two of our science faculty, Carl Von Mertens and Erika Rogers submitted a proposal to The Perkin Fund to improve the teaching of science. In November we received the good news from the Fund of an $80,000 grant.

Although Dublin School has tried to keep up with current trends in science education, the rapid advances in technology have made it difficult for the School to meet national standards in science education. In the past two decades, discoveries in DNA analysis, cell biology, and microbiology have made most school laboratories obsolete. Advances in available software for Chemistry and Physics have made classroom computers, data probes, and projection screens a virtual necessity. Our science faculty has often felt that they must “make do,” however creatively, when designing and implementing classes and labs. Our students deserve better and now they will be getting it.

These critically needed funds will be used to supply our teachers and our students with the tools they require to study science and to reinvigorate the “science culture” of our School. Here is a summary of what we will be able to do thanks to this magnificent grant:

1. Technology
Our most significant need in the science department is a system of computer projectors. The department has one projector and teachers have their own laptop computers. However, the logistics required to set up the system for a short presentation make it very impractical. By having a permanently set up projector in each of the three classrooms, teachers can make a quick PowerPoint presentation on a particular subject, they can show short clips of certain DVDs, they can run demonstrations of lab experiments that might be too difficult for our equipment, etc. The point is that this technology must be readily accessible and convenient to use.

2. Classroom Renovations
The School has had plans to convert one of the squash courts into two levels. The lower-level will be used for practice rooms for the music department and band, and the upper-level adjacent to the existing “lower” science room will be enlarged. The present room is 16 x 32 feet. By adding the additional space in the squash courts, the space could almost be doubled. This will allow for a sink with running water and extra tables to conduct laboratory experiments. The main cost for this project will be cutting through the concrete walls that separate the space. The School has some source of funding for the lower music spaces but this grant will allow us to connect the upper spaces. The work will be constructed by our in-house staff.
3. Weather Station
Weather bug is a national weather reporting system that is run by CBS. We want to make students more aware of the environment in which they live. Because of its elevation of 1439 feet and its proximity to Mount Monadnock, our School experiences some severe weather! This system allows continuous weather read outs that can be displayed in the lobby of our science building.

4. Renewable Energy
In conjunction with our School’s mission to encourage sustainable living, the science department will like to take the lead in educating our community about the benefits of renewable energy. Solar panels and wind turbines on campus will allow us to investigate real life applications of renewable energy. While these resources will be of no significant benefit to our School’s energy needs, we will create data links to each energy source to get real-time data of how much energy is produced in a given day. These read-outs will be displayed with our weather data in the science lobby.

5. Upgrading Lab Equipment
This grant will also allow us to purchase equipment that will expand our capability of conducting certain laboratory experiments. This is especially true for our AP biology course that presently cannot complete all the requirements of that course. Specifically, we need a centrifuge, incubator, spectrometer and additional DNA testing equipment.

6. Utilizing Outdoors
The School currently owns 348 acres which contain a variety of natural habitats. To better utilize these amazing resources, we will create 2-3 outdoor classrooms within walking distance of the School, so teachers could easily teach a class outdoors during a normal teaching period. We will also build a sampling dock at our pond, and significantly increase our water and soil collecting and testing equipment.

7. Campus-Wide Science Awareness
To improve the general scientific awareness of the entire Dublin community, a viewing window for our existing saltwater aquarium, an aquaculture system, telescope and seismograph are needed. All of this equipment will be directly utilized in our existing science elective courses of Marine Science, Environmental Science, General Astronomy and “Our Angry Earth.”

Because of this generous grant, Dublin School will no longer be using substandard equipment that can lead students to devalue the learning and to invest less effort in their work. Because we will be educating our students in much better facilities, they in turn will be much more likely to consider biotechnology, chemistry, engineering and computer sciences as major fields of study. They will truly benefit from working in an atmosphere that encourages seriousness of purpose.

We want to close with special thanks to John M. Gray ’88, a trustee of The Perkin Fund, who encouraged our proposal and provided valuable counsel.

The Dublin School Birthday Book Program

The program celebrates the birthday of a student in a significant and long-lasting way. Many parents and grandparents purchase books that benefit today’s students and will contribute to those in the years to come. The Dublin School faculty and Librarian have compiled a list of various titles, taking into consideration the needs of the library and the mission of the School. They have determined that these books will enhance the library's collection and add reference resources for numerous courses.

The ongoing contributions to the Birthday Book Program continue to enrich the library and the academic programs at the school. If you have any questions regarding this program, please feel free to contact Ed Kerman, Head Librarian at 603/563-8584, ext. 243.

Plan now to be here while school is in session on our Mayfair Weekend. See an arts production, the Maypole Dance, lacrosse and tennis matches, and a Friday night Coffee House with tons of student talent.

Reunion reception & banquet Saturday night, place to be determined. We will also be sure there is opportunity for quiet time and fun time with old friends . . . or to climb Mt. Monadnock.

This is going to be an exceptional Alumni Weekend, full of opportunity to see Dublin School at its best.

Jim writes that daughter and son-in-law, Kerry and Alex Bollman, had their first child in July 2006. Young Zachary is doing well.

Abbot R. Foote ’61
While spending much of his life caring for people, for the environment, and for our world/planet, Abbot has over 30 years of experience related to conservation and solar. He has solar in his home and office and is excited to start some larger church projects in hopes that this would bring in the educational element. Abbot wants solar to become average and mainstream, the normal thing to do. He feels that all houses should have this, rather than solar being regarded as something exotic or optional.

Rick has certainly kept in touch with fellow Dublin classmates… “Michael Cushing ’67 was here in NC for a week looking at property to buy. He will be moving from Westport, MA to relocate in either the Raleigh or Wilmington NC area. Jose (Pepe) Garcia ’67 will be our guest here on Feb. 22 for a few days. He also wanted to see the area for possible investments. Guy Jackson ’67 was down visiting his daughter at Duke University and had dinner with James Huntington-Meath ’67 who now lives in Cary, outside Raleigh. Mike Pilert ’67 is back from Mozambique where he was flying relief missions. Cartney James ’67, Mike Cuddihee ’67, Jon Avery ’67 and Anthony Stevens ’67 have all expressed interest in attending the Forty-Year Reunion on Cinco de Mayo as he have the aforementioned classmates. Jorge Parada ’67 and Jose (Pepe) shall fly up from Mexico for the Cinco de Mayo festivities. The class of ’67 shall also invite the classes of ’66 and ’68 to attend the reunion. So far we have 12 class members planning to attend, more pending. Best regards, Rick”

REMEMBER DUBLIN SCHOOL IN YOUR ESTATE PLANS

Bequests are a major source of endowment for Dublin School. Endowment will help to ensure that Dublin School has the resources to provide faculty and staff salaries and benefits, financial aid, improvements and maintenance of facilities, library collection and vital programs. If you are considering a provision for Dublin School in your will and would like suggested language, or if you have already made provision for the School and would like to share that information, please contact Richard K. Fox, Director of Development, P.O. Box 522, Dublin, NH 03444; 603-563-1230; or rfox@dublinschool.org or Christopher R. Horgan, Headmaster, 603-563-2222 or chorgan@dublinschool.org.
Jeanne, a Jaffrey, New Hampshire artist, is a featured designer in Benjamin Moore’s ’07 color catalog. Her family home in Jaffrey provides the focal point for an article entitled “A Lesson In Looking.” The article includes a short biography of Jeanne, photographs of her home and a discussion of how Jeanne uses paint color in her home. The catalogue is available for purchase at Belletetes True Value.

Robert Bacharach – Faculty 1981-1983

We received a packet from Robert which included a Lacrosse score booklet and clippings (he coached Boys’ Lacrosse in 1981). “We started with the fundamentals, we were the Bad News Bears, some of the jerseys had Roman numerals taped to them. The first season we were 6-1, next 8-1 and finally 9-2 in 1983.” Some of the kids he coached played college ball; Jay Manning played at St. Mary’s, and Ian McEnnery played at Bates in Maine. He also saw Darren Jones several times each year when he was in the Navy. He had lost contact with Matt Senior. Darren and Matt were the captains. Robert has been married for nearly 26 years to Lynn who continues to practice PT (pediatrics). He also coached at Mt. Hebron but had to stop because he was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis after multiple symptoms. Robert and Lynn have two daughters. The oldest is attending Lawson University and managing Lock Raven HS a men’s lax team. Their 13-year-old daughter, Laura, is a goalie and plays some attack for two teams. Robert has earned a second masters - this one in Social Works!

Rob writes, “Up until mid-January it had been a balmy winter in Washington, DC and one that has felt more like one long cool spring. However, old man winter finally has arrived. I see Lorenzo Rasetti ’85 regularly, given that we live minutes away from each other in Washington. We continue to join forces and complete long term house projects on his beautiful home on the weekends. field (Water Pollution Case Work) in 2008. I find my current personal investment work intellectually challenging and great fun, so it has been very rewarding doing this full-time for the last 2 years. I visited Dublin, NH for 6 days at the end of January when it was profoundly cold! The -4 degree temperatures were quite a contrast to the mid 50's in Washington, DC. The Dublin School campus looked charming in the new fallen snow. It was nice to see the campus looking so beautiful. I hope to hear from fellow classmates with news. Best to everyone!”

Lara writes, “Powder season is upon us here in Colorado, so life is good! Over the summer, I took a road trip with my husband and we visited a few Dublin pals: Colin Gasamas (and fiancée), Matt Allan (and fiancée) and Rob Montegue. I sent some pics to you - I hope you got them. It was a wild trip!”
Joo Hyun Park ’96
Joo Hyun is back in Korea working at a manpower recruitment company. Before that she was teaching English to elementary school kids. That experience made her realize how hard it is to teach kids and made her really appreciate Dublin!

Since graduating from Hofstra in December of 2005, Jen has worked for Island/Def Jam Records as an administrative assistant to the VP, has taken on personal assistant work in the entertainment industry, and is currently working for an insurance company. In her spare time, she plans to keep her ties within the industry but right now is just striving to learn more and do more. She writes that she is still very close friends with Bakari Gaynor ’99 and Ramon De la Oz ’00 who she speaks with on a regular basis. Both are doing well.

Emily Antonioli Maki ’01
Emily and her husband purchased a home in Maine and she discovered that the previous owner was on the board of trustees of Dublin – what a small world! She was so excited to learn that both Jill and Eliza are also mothers. She had her first child, Ella Grace Maki, in November of 2005.

Emily Antonioli Maki ’01 presents Ella Grace Maki
On December 28th and 29th, the second floor of the Howe Administrative Center was abuzz as a combination of seven graduates in the area on their college breaks came together to make daytime telephone calls on behalf of the Annual Fund. In total, this impressive assemblage attempted to reach over 275 other graduates, left messages and sent follow-up notes to 115+, and chatted with a smaller number whose commitments totaled nearly $1,000.

Very special thanks to those pictured below who participated in this year-end calling.

Our Mission

At Dublin School, we strive to awaken a curiosity for knowledge and a passion for learning. We instill the values of discipline and meaningful work that are necessary for the good of self and community. We respect the individual learning style and unique potential each student brings to our School. With our guidance, Dublin students become men and women who seek truth and act with courage.
