

My 12 yr old son attended Teresa's week-long "Sketching the Natural World" drawing class for children, held at the beautiful Cox Studio. I was thoroughly impressed by both the range and progress through basics/techniques (e.g paper/lead, blind contour, values, shadow, collage), as well as the impressive works created by my son presented at finale showing/ critique. We loved working with Teresa; and the kids loved Arlo (the dog) too. Highly recommend this class for kids...and Teresa as instructor and artist.

I learned you have feelings that you can put on paper with paint.

My grandson at ages 6, 7 and 10 has attended studio classes of Teresa's. He always enjoys himself and comes home with new art knowledge and skills. He especially loves to draw and I found it fun one day to over hear him describe his new understanding of the "horizon line" while sketching with a friend. I would highly recommend Teresa's studio workshops for children. She creates a fun, interesting, and respectful place for learning.

I like how Teresa gives us an open ended project to work on and does not limit our creativity.

The process is magical. The students begin with a review of others art and then move to the exploration of their own ideas. They then pick an idea and develop it into a finished piece. Whether it is a map or a sculpture, the piece reflects both what the student has learned and how they uniquely view the world.

I like how Teresa takes my children through an art journey, teaching the process and not just the outcome. She also shows them how to look and discuss each other's work which is a rarity in art training for kids.

When Teresa teaches, a lovely world of creative possibilities unfolds before the students. She embraces her students with warmth and humor and they sense her deep respect for their ideas and their individuality. This creates a wonderful atmosphere for creative expression. Her art classes provide a much deeper artistic experience than any other classes our children have taken. She has a true gift for helping students develop their own individual creativity.

The art classes my daughter and son have taken with Teresa have been outstanding. The kids come home with such creative projects and have a great time!

Parent-Maureen (Chanhassen)

The final presentation is something every parent should listen to and observe. The children present their art, others give positive critique and Teresa's comments add not only to the "positive critique" but at the same time she gives the children the professional words to define and describe what they do. Each time I witness the end of a project or workshop, it amazes me the way she leads the children and how proud they feel of themselves.

Parent-Dalia (Minneapolis)

My kids are free to express their unique creativity through Teresa's enthusiastic encouragement. They always leave her classes bubbling with confidence in their art and development of their skills.
