

JOHN O'MALLEY

Second Quarter, 2012

Dear Pastor,

The Lord's goodness has been evident this quarter. I am eager to share with you the news of the ministry.

In April, we held our semi-annual Candidate School. We had 12 families in attendance. These families came for a time of training on how to do deputation, how to be a missionary, and how to effectively communicate in the ministry. I believe the graduates of this year's missions class will be highly effective in the work of the ministry. Because of your support I helped administrate and taught in this Candidate School.

In May, our son graduated with his Master's degree. I was able to attend his graduation to celebrate with him this milestone. During May I also preached in four missions conferences helping churches reach their Faith Promise Goals. Your monthly support enabled me to train missionaries, interview missionaries, and help churches increase their missions giving. May is also the month of preparation for our annual Family Fellowship Week. Our staff works very hard to hold this conference and God richly rewarded their labors.

In June, we held our Family Fellowship Week. The Lord led me to select the theme from Genesis 12:1-2. "I will shew thee." Each man who preached took us to a place in Scripture where God showed His man what He needed him to see. Your faithful contributions make it possible to plan, preach, and encourage missionaries. Thank you for being faithful in your giving to this work.

In June, I visited Ivory Coast, West Africa. I visited one of the churches of our missionaries. It was a good 12 day trip. I was bitten by a Malaria-carrying mosquito. It manifested when I got home. It put me out of commission for a week. I am still having some residual issues.

This ministry global in scope requires many miles travelled, many days away from home, and many moments in agonizing prayer before the Lord. I thank you for being there for me in the work to which I've been called. Thank you most of all for your prayers.

Sincerely yours,

John O'Malley
