DECATUR (AP)

A 35-year-old Decatur man is dead after a railroad construction accident in the central Illinois town.

Macon County Coroner Michael Day says the man was knocked from a catwalk Thursday by some kind of cable or equipment while overseeing the repair of a train trestle.

Day says the worker died Thursday afternoon at a hospital. His name hasn't been released because relatives are still trying to reach members of his immediate family.

The man worked for Canadian National Railway.

Company spokesman Patrick Waldron says the death is under investigation.
