Railroad worker killed

By Danielle Briones

Published on July 22, 2005

27-year-old Christopher Jones fell from the back of a rail car on a Burlington Norther-Santa Fe train and was pinned when a grain hauler and tanker came together, police say.

Jones was pronounced dead at the scene. Emporia police and the railroad are investigating. A spokesman for the company said Jones had worked for the railroad since January.

Comment on this article →

Keyword Tags: personal injury, railroad accidents, wrongful death

Post your comment

Public comments are welcome. For answers to your personal questions, ask an attorney in our directory.

Name
Email (kept private)
Website
Message

Post Your Comment

Search

Find a lawyer near you

1 Select a Specialty

Area of Law --------- 2 Enter your zip

GO
Railroad worker killed

http://www.lawyershop.com/2005/07/22/railroad-worker-killed