Rail Employee Killed In Accident At Baltimore Rail Yard
February 7, 2019 at 2:05 pm

BALTIMORE (WJZ) — The National Transportation Safety Board tweeted at around 1:30 p.m. Thursday afternoon that a rail employee has been killed in an accident.

The NTSB is sending investigators to a railroad accident in Baltimore that resulted in the death of a Norfolk Southern employee at the Bayview Rail Yard.

NTSB says they are still investigating the incident.

This story is developing.

NTSB Investigating Worker Death At Baltimore Railyard
February 8, 2019 at 6:21 am

BALTIMORE (AP) — A railroad worker has been fatally injured in Baltimore, and federal investigators are trying to piece together how the deadly accident occurred.

A Norfolk Southern worker was somehow killed amid the switching of cars early Thursday at the Bayview railyard in Maryland’s biggest city, according to National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Keith Holloway. He says a team was sent to investigate the accident.

The worker’s name has not been released while relatives are notified.

A spokeswoman for Norfolk Southern says the railroad company is cooperating with federal investigators and local officials. She declined to release additional details.