ART IN PUBLIC PLACES (CONTINUED)

- 2009 DHMC Public Art Project Plan: In collaboration with Terry Boyle, TJ Boyle and Associates Landscape Architects created a project plan that identifies locations throughout the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center (DHMC) campus, located in Lebanon, New Hampshire, for public art projects. Funded through a grant by New England Foundation for the Arts. Beyond suggesting public art projects ideally suited for the selected locations, the DHMC Public Art Project Plan is a primary fundraising tool to help underwrite the projects. The campus includes Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital, the Norris Cotton Cancer Center, the Doctors Office Building and the Borwell Research Building on 225 relatively rural acres. As a leading medical institution, DHMC has created a unique environment that unites humanity, wilderness, science and technology where approximately 6,500 employees serve the needs of 470,000 patients a year onsite. We engaged DHMC employees and patients in a cooperative manner that crossed race, class, and employment boundaries in order to create the DHMC Public Art Project Plan. This project, like the installations for which it paves the way, is helping create a greater sense of community within the institution while simultaneously beautifying it--ultimately increasing patient comfort, employee satisfaction and the overall quality of care that patients receive.
- 2009 Painting Installation, Public Art Commission, Children's Hospital at Dartmouth Hitchcock Medical Center, Peaceable Kingdom
- 2008 City Center Gateway, First Public Art Project of the South Burlington, VT City Center Development, A Collaboration with Terry Boyle, TJ Boyle and Associates Landscape Architects, Burlington, VT. This piece incorporates Gottsegen's paintings into a 150' foot long, curvilinear fence and the top of a 20' high gateway tower. The paintings, were digitally reproduced and incorporated into glass panels (produced by Pulp Studios, Los Angeles, CA), they form a translucent screen. Gottsegen derived images for the paintings of surrounding natural areas through community conversation and process. The site also includes meandering stonewalls, seating areas and plantings. The project budget is $135,000.
- 2008 Temporary (six month) Painting Installation Burlington International Airport, Burlington, VT
- 2008 Finalist Chandler Music Center Centennial Public Art Project, Randolph, VT
- 2007 Temporary (six month) Paintings Installation Fletcher Allen Hospital, Burlington, VT
