Richard C. Holbrooke Legacy Giving Program

It is with pride that we honor our former board chair, Richard C. Holbrooke, through our legacy giving program. Richard was a distinguished diplomat and humanitarian who led Refugees International as chairman of the board from 1996-1999, bringing his decades long expertise and compassion to strengthen RI's advocacy for the world's most vulnerable people.

Refugees International is grateful to our generous supporters who believe in our mission and our work. At the heart of this generosity are those who have made a thoughtful decision to include RI in their estate planning. We hope that you will consider joining this effort by remembering Refugees International in your estate plan.

Your legacy gift will help guarantee that Refugees International can continue our vital advocacy on behalf of displaced people. RI does not accept funding from any government or from the United Nations, to keep our work fearless and independent.

A bequest made in your will or trust will help secure Refugees International's mission and work into the future. There are two easy ways to remember RI in your will:

- A specific bequest. This directs a fixed dollar amount or particular assets, such as securities or property.

- A residuary bequest directs a percentage of your estate, after specific gifts to other beneficiaries have been fulfilled. No percentage is too small and all amounts will make an impact on our work.

You may designate your gift in honor of a loved one. RI prefers that bequests support general operating purposes, so that we may use your generous gift in the areas that are most needed.

If you have named Refugees International in your will, trust or other plan, please contact Lisa Cantu-Parks, vice president of philanthropy, at lisa@refintl.org. We thank you for your gift to sustain the future of refugee advocacy.
