

OCHO

Artist Residencies

OCHO art + event space in Questa, New Mexico, has been hosting artists in residence for 4 years. Our international and U.S. artists have worked in fields from process painting to printmaking to interactive community art. We look forward to also including sound artists, film-makers, writers and more!

OCHO offers open space with Takach Press, drafting table, plus additional work tables, and option for 11'x11' private studio if needed. We host one artist at a time. Private bedroom is adjacent to work area, and use of full kitchen and bath is included. High-speed internet, monitor, projector, and presentation spaces are available. Exhibition and artist talk is desired but optional.

Located a half hour north of Taos, the tiny village of Questa is surrounded by protected wilderness, and is home to a burgeoning arts community. With the Carson National Forest to the east and the Rio Grande del Norte National Monument to our west, you can explore mountain meadows and river chasms, petroglyphs, lakes, streams, a historic adobe church, and a palpable Spanish frontier heritage.

OCHO Director, artist Barrie Andrews, likes to think of her residencies as "Resonancies" that respond to the unique environment of Northern New Mexico, and stretch an artist to places of experimentation, new art forms, collaboration, and inter-disciplinary work.
