University of Maryland Dental School, Perryville is the newest embodiment of the university vision to address the needs of underserved populations and, most importantly, produce the next generation of oral health care professionals. The building is now home to the largest dental clinic in the country. The interior space incorporates natural maple, light airy colors and the latest technology. A sense of comfort and warmth is sensed throughout the space. The furniture compliments the contemporary interior architectural finishes. Custom signage also has a large impact within the space.

The project shown represents a project completed by an employee of RHJ while employed with Henretty Design Associates, Inc. Michael Henretty was the Interior Designer for this project.

Project:  Interior Design for Dental Clinic
Client:  University of Maryland
Location:  Perryville, MD
Completed SF:  12,600
Use:  B (Business)
Construction Cost:  $1.75 million
Completion Date:  Spring 2010