The project included the conversion of two existing spaces into one contiguous space. The main goal of the project was to create a warm, inviting space for patients and at the same time project a sense of high standards. Warm, neutral colors were used throughout the space. A mix of different architectural materials and elegant light fixtures were used in all the common areas. The construction was completed within a four week time period. The space remained occupied as construction occurred.

The project shown represents a project completed by an employee of RHJ while employed with Henretty Design Associates, Inc. Michael Henretty was the Interior Designer for this project.
