Rep. Mark Jansen, from the 72nd District, and Rep. Triette Reeves, from the 13th District, offered the following invocations:

Rep. Jansen:

“Heavenly Father, we thank You for this day as we come to You this morning to serve You. We ask, Lord, that You would give us insight and clear thoughts as we finish this 1999 Legislature so that we can look at the mirror in front of us and ask ourselves, have we really honored and served You? If we have not, can You forgive us for our failures? We ask that we be challenged in the year ahead—in the year 2000, and that we would truly serve, honor and obey You. I thank and praise You for the friends we have in this House. Lord, above all we give our praise to You. Amen.”

Rep. Reeves:

“Father, we take this time to ask Your mercy and Your forgiveness for all that we have done to fall short of that which You have sent us here to do—for not representing Your interest and for failing to represent the interest of those who sent us here. Father, for all the things which we have done that were not in Your will, we ask Your mercy and Your forgiveness right now in the name of Jesus. Father, I ask that You trammel us in our sinful ways and renew in us a right spirit so that we would trammel in our wrong doings. Give us wisdom on how to regain our focus on You and those who choose You. Lord, I ask You to bless us. For those who do not choose You, Lord, I ask You to have mercy. I praise You and all things. We ask You to bless us that we will have a safe holiday. Bless every household represented. Bless every representative represented. This we ask in the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus. Amen.”

The House agreed to the title of the bill.

Rep. Baird, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted no on SB 810 and the rest of the bills in this package for reasons including the following:

Politically, because minority populations lean more to the Democratic Party than to the Republican Party, Republicans believe that using sampling methods to bring about a more accurate count of the nation’s population will harm their political interests. This concern was demonstrated by a memo from the Republican National Committee dated May 20, 1997 to all state republican chairpersons stating that it is vital that Republicans be united in opposing statistical sampling because it will clearly benefit Democrats.

This package of bills also imports the ‘Apol criteria’ from state legislative redistricting into congressional redistricting. These criteria stress the preservation of county, city and township lines. The list of Apol criteria is neither accurate nor fair to Democrats or minority populations. The Apol criteria do not reflect the criteria historically recognized by federal courts in Michigan congressional redistricting. Those non-prioritized factors were articulated in the case of Good v. Austin, 800 F. Supp. 557 & n.6 (1992) and are as follows:

compactness, contiguity, preservation of the integrity of county and municipal boundaries, maintenance of the cores of existing districts, preservation of cultural, social, and economic communities of interest, and political and racial fairness.

The Apol criteria will result in the severe dilution of African-American voting strength in particular and thus clearly do not promote political and racial fairness.

Redistricting criteria which limit the ability to split jurisdictions are detrimental to the construction of plans which are fair to minority populations. Limiting the splitting of jurisdictions is designed to pack as many Democrats and particularly African American and other minority voters into as few districts as possible.

The Voting Rights Act Prohibits packing and if the Apol standards are adopted for congressional redistricting it will allow packing to occur and thus lead to a violation of the Voting Rights Act.

The U.S. Supreme Court has held in Burns v. Richardson, 384 U.S. 73 (1966), and in Fortson v. Dorsey, 379 U.S. 433 (1965), that apportionment plans will constitute invidious discrimination when it is shown that ‘designedly or otherwise’ the apportionment ‘would operate to minimize or cancel out the voting strength of racial or political elements of the voting population.’

Finally, adoption of this package will undoubtedly lead to costly and acrimonious litigation.”

Rep. Quarles, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted no on SB 810 and the other bills in this package in part because the House Democratic Task Force on redistricting was excluded from participating in the committee process.

Speaker Perricone and Rep. Richner were well aware that I chaired the task force on redistricting for the House Democratic Caucus. Rep. Richner and I attended an NCSL conference on redistricting last winter.

Despite the Republicans’ knowledge of my involvement in redistricting on behalf of our caucus, the bills were referred to a committee on which I did not sit (and which in fact has nothing to do with redistricting.) Therefore my input into the redistricting bills as a legislator and as a member of the House Democratic task force was severely limited.

At the committee hearing President Bush’s Director of the Census Bureau testified that the bills will result in an undercount of minorities. The committee to which the bills were assigned - Family and Civil Law - did not solicit the testimony of this witness, a Michigan resident, and one of the most authoritative experts on census issues in the country. Instead the committee solicited testimony from a state demographer who has publically affiliated himself with a Republican-oriented think tank. It is clear from the committee testimony that the bills will result in the dilution of minority participation in the election process.

Even though the voting rights of minorities will be profoundly affected by these bills they were referred to a legislative committee with no minority representation.

Therefore my “no” vote can be attributed in part to the majority’s intentional efforts to limit my involvement and the involvement of minority legislators in shaping these bills that profoundly affect the voting rights of so many citizens of this state.”

Second Reading of Bills

Senate Bill No. 811, entitled

The House agreed to the title of the bill.

Rep. Baird, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted no on SB 811 because, despite the Senate floor amendments to this bill, the bill as written still appears to conflict with federal law and arguably attempts to interfere with the jurisdiction of the federal courts regarding congressional redistricting.

I voted against SB 810, 811, 813 and 814 because they violate the federal Voting Rights Act and the federal Census Act, and because contrary to the claims of the bills’ proponents, this legislation is not in accordance with federal case law on the issue.

Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, 2 USC Section 1973, prohibits any practice or procedure by a state which results in denial or abridgement of the right to vote (such as vote dilution) based on race or color. Intent to discriminate is not required.

It has been conclusively demonstrated that the undercount that occurs during ‘actual enumeration’ disproportionately impacts African-Americans, Latinos, and other racial minorities through dilution of their votes. The federal courts have held that during the redistricting process if a state knows that census data undercounts minorities it must utilize data such as that obtained from sampling to comply with the Voting Rights Act. Senate of State of California v. Mosbacher, 968 F.2d 974, 979 (9th Cir., 1992)

Furthermore, although proponents of this legislation have suggested otherwise, in fact neither the United States Constitution nor the U.S. Supreme Court has required that “actual enumeration” data be used for the purpose of redistricting. Redistricting is not the same as apportionment. The leading Supreme Court case on this issue (Department of Commerce v. United States House of Representatives, decided January 25, 1999) held that the federal Census Act requires that “actual enumeration” data must be used in apportioning the 435 congressional seats among the states. It did not hold that ‘actual enumeration’ data must be used for any other purpose. In fact, the Supreme Court noted in that case to the contrary that the Census Act requires the use of sampling for all other purposes other than the apportionment of the 435 congressional seats among the states when the Secretary of Commerce deems it feasible. The Secretary of Commerce has declared that sampling procedures are feasible and must be used for all other purposes, including congressional redistricting within the states.”

Rep. Quarles, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted against Sbs 810, 811, 813 and 814 because they violate the Voting Rights Act.

The state's use for redistricting purposes of uncorrected data that disproportionately undercounts minority populations will result in oversized districts for Latino and African-American populations in particular, and as such will illegally deviate from the one person/one vote standard.

The Census Bureau has long been trying to reduce the undercount, first measured by demographic analysis in 1940. The impetus for this first analysis was that more males, and particularly black males, ages 18 to 45 registered for the draft than had been counted in the 1940 census. By a continuous cycle of following each census with evaluation, research and introducing method changes, the Census Bureau successfully reduced the total national undercount from 5.4% to 1.2% between 1940 and 1980. Then in 1990, despite more intensive efforts than in 1980, it crept back up to 1.6%. More disconcerting than the 0.4% increase was that the gap between the proportion of blacks and non-blacks counted widened, after having progressively narrowed for five censuses.

Following the 1990 census, the Census Bureau conducted two kinds of research—demographic analysis and post-enumeration survey. Estimates based on the post-enumeration survey indicated, as expected, that African-Americans had been undercounted in greater proportion than whites (-4.4% compared to -1.2%). However, for the first time there was also data on the undercount of Hispanics (-5.0%), Asians (-2.3%), and American Indians (-4.5%).

By enacting this package of legislation, the Legislature is effectively mandating the use of racially-skewed population-based data for redistricting purposes. The state cannot offer a non-racial justification for this package that is anything but disingenuous, because the overwhelming testimony this body has received makes it clear that minorities will be under-counted by the “actual enumeration” that the package will require the state to use.

Moreover, there has not been consultation with language or minority groups in developing this legislation. The only “consultation” has been in the form of testimony before the House Committee on Family & Civil Law by a handful of groups representing minority interests—all of whom testified in opposition to the legislation.”

The House agreed to the title of the bill.

Rep. Baird, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

The fact that Republicans voted for these bills demonstrates that they are willing to toss aside accuracy in the drawing of political districts. They voted instead to knowingly allow the state to use inaccurate population data that undercounts minorities. The legislators who did so acted in the face of concerns uniformly expressed by minority interest groups and statistical experts that the use of uncorrected ‘actual enumeration’ census data will most inevitably result in the under-representation of minority populations.

The following representatives of the scientific community have attested that statistical sampling is a reliable scientific method and that it will allow the Census Bureau to produce the most accurate census count possible:

- The United States Census Bureau
Dr. Barbara Bryant, former director of the Census Bureau under President Bush, provided written testimony to the House Committee on Family & Civil Law 11/4/99
- National Academy of Sciences
Report of the Panel on Census Requirements in the Year 2000 and Beyond, Committee on National Statistics (1995)
- American Statistical Association
Report of the Blue Ribbon Panel on the Census (September 1996)

- Population Association of America
Douglas S. Massey, President (June 1996)
- National Research Council
“Preparing for the 2000 Census: Interim Report II” of the Panel to Evaluate Alternative Census Methodologies (June 1997)
- U.S. General Accounting Office (1995)
- U.S. Department of Commerce Inspector General Frank DeForge (October 1995)”

Rep. Quarles, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted against Senate Bills 810, 811, 813 and 814 because as I similarly noted in my No Vote Explanations for the previous bills in this package, this legislation will violate the Voting Rights Act by diluting the ‘one person/one vote standard.’ The state’s use for redistricting purposes of uncorrected data that disproportionately undercounts minority populations will result in significantly oversized districts for Latino, African-American and other minority populations, and as such it will illegally deviate from the one person/one vote standard. Federal courts have held that during the redistricting process, if a state knows that census data undercounts minorities it must utilize more accurate data (such as that obtained from corrected data) to comply with the Voting Rights Act.

Nevertheless, this legislation prohibits the use of modern statistical methods widely regarded as the means for producing the most accurate count possible, and instead requires the state to use uncorrected figures for redistricting. This body has been advised through ample committee testimony that the relying on the ‘actual enumeration’ figures referred to in the legislation has been known to produce an undercount in the past and will most inevitably produce an undercount in the 2000 census. Republican proponents of these bills want to require the state to use so-called ‘actual enumeration’ census data because that data disproportionately undercounts minorities. Republicans know that using the corrected census data that more accurately counts African-Americans, Latinos and other minorities will likely lead to the creation of more political seats in parts of the state where more minorities live. Because minority voters tend to vote for Democratic political candidates over Republicans, the Republicans are afraid that accurately counting minority populations will result in more Democrats getting elected.

It is morally and ethically wrong for this state to have in place a policy that will result in the blatant political underrepresentation of African-Americans, Latinos, Asian-Americans and other minorities. In 1790, black slaves were counted as three-fifths of a person. In the 1990 census, black males were counted as nine-tenths; one in 10 was missed. Despite the fact that the 1990 census surpassed all previous censuses in terms of design, execution and resources expended, for the first time since 1940 the 1990 census failed to be more accurate than its predecessor. The 1990 census failed to count more than 66,000 people in Michigan. More than 44,000 were African-Americans. More than 5,400 were Latinos.

Furthermore, the bills’ incorporation of the ‘Apol criteria’ limits the splitting of jurisdictions and is designed to pack as many African-American and other minority voters into as few districts as possible. These criteria will have a racially discriminatory effect and do not reflect the criteria historically recognized by federal courts regarding congressional redistricting as set forth in Good v. Austin, 800 F.Supp 557 (1992).”

Second Reading of Bills

Senate Bill No. 813, entitled

The question being on agreeing to the title of the bill,

Rep. Raczkowski moved to amend the title to read as follows:

A bill to amend 1961 PA 236, entitled "An act to revise and consolidate the statutes relating to the organization and jurisdiction of the courts of this state; the powers and duties of such courts, and of the judges and other officers thereof; the forms and attributes of civil claims and actions; the time within which civil actions and proceedings may be brought in said courts; pleading, evidence, practice and procedure in civil and criminal actions and proceedings in said courts; to provide remedies and penalties for the violation of certain provisions of this act; and to repeal all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with, or contravening any of the provisions of this act," (MCL 600.101 to 600.9948) by adding section 216.

The motion prevailed.

The House agreed to the title as amended.

Rep. Rison, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

"Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted no on this bill for two reasons. First, the bill goes against the interests of my constituents and the rest of the citizens of Michigan. Additionally, on the previous bill, Senate Bill 814, I mistakenly voted Yea when I meant to vote Nay. I was not allowed to change my vote, even though I was opposed to the bill, and even though the Republican leadership has repeatedly extended that courtesy to their Members in this session. As a matter of fact, it happened earlier this morning, when a Republican Member did not vote on a bill. After the bill was passed, it was voted on again so that she could record her vote. I am sad that the same courtesy was not extended to me.

Again, my Yea vote on Senate Bill 814 was not my intent, and should not be taken as evidence of bipartisan support for this very partisan bill.”

Rep. Quarles, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

SB 813 violates Art. IV Sec. 24 of the Michigan Constitution in that its purposed changed through an amendment identified as H-3. Originally the bill amended section 302 of the RJA as passed the amended section 216.”

Rep. Baird, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I voted ‘no’ on SBs 810, 811, 813 and 814 based in large part on the testimony of Barbara Bryant, who was President Bush’s Director of the Census Bureau during the 1990 census. She said:

‘It is not possible to directly enumerate everyone either in Michigan or in the United States in the decennial census of population. Our society is too diverse and too mobile to count those who do not respond to census questionnaires, or those who through apathy, ignorance, fear, or intention are unwilling to be counted.’

‘None of us knows what the magnitude of that shortfall might be. That is why I ask you not to lock our state into mandated use of the count from ‘actual enumeration’ before you can consider the second count. That second count will include the “actual enumeration” PLUS statistical estimates based on the post-census Accuracy and Coverage Evaluation survey that will determine the numbers and characteristics of those not counted, and those counted twice. If the actual enumeration is very complete, there will be small differences between the two counts. If, however, some proportion of the residents of Michigan do not cooperate by mailing back their census forms—or do not respond to the enumerators who will call in-person on the households that do not return those forms—then you will want to be able to consider use of the enhanced second count.’

‘Michigan will best be served in the coming decade by knowing as accurately as possible how many of us there are, where we live, and what the characteristics of our population are. Whether the census data are used for redistricting; for planning by school districts, cities, townships, health providers, social agencies; or for businesses deciding where to locate, we will limp into next millennium if we use data that are less than the best available. We do not know how accurate the 2000 census will be. We will not know until the research that evaluates the enumeration is completed and is used to produce a best estimate of the population. The deadline for that is April 1, 2001.’

‘The proportion that return mailed questionnaires is anticipated to decline further in 2000. Further societal change may be offset to some extent by improved questionnaire design, better mailing procedures, and—for the first time—use of a paid advertising campaign. To directly enumerate those who don’t send back their census forms will require an estimated half a million census takers calling on 46 million households.’

‘We don’t know yet how well the residents of this state and nation will respond to the 2000 census. That is why we should not rule out the possibility that the enumerated count enhanced by a statistical estimate of those missed will be a more accurate count of Michigan than the enumerated count alone. We should retain the option of looking at both counts. In the long run, our state will best be served by accuracy.’ ”

Second Reading of Bills

Senate Bill No. 205, entitled

A bill to amend 1981 PA 93, entitled “Michigan right to farm act,” by amending section 4 (MCL 286.474), as amended by 1995 PA 94.

The question being on agreeing to the title of the bill,

Rep. Raczkowski moved to amend the title to read as follows:

A bill to amend 1981 PA 93, entitled “An act to define certain farm uses, operations, practices, and products; to provide certain disclosures; to provide for circumstances under which a farm shall not be found to be a public or private nuisance; to provide for certain powers and duties for certain state agencies and departments; and to provide for certain remedies for certain persons,” by amending section 4 (MCL 286.474), as amended by 1995 PA 94; and to repeal acts and parts of acts.

The motion prevailed.

The House agreed to the title as amended.

Rep. Vander Roest, having reserved the right to explain his protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:

“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

As an owner of a small farm and as a former township supervisor, I have a deep appreciation for the issues at the heart of the SB 205 debate. Based on my personal experiences, the conversations I have had with residents, the meetings with various organizations, and the information given to me, I felt that the best way to resolve the conflicts of this bill was to help foster a compromise and to bring a balance between all the concerned parties.

Unfortunately, despite efforts made by the Michigan Farm Bureau, Michigan Department of Agriculture and Michigan Townships Association to achieve an agreement, they fell short of a final compromise. Therefore, I voted against the bill for this and several other reasons. First, I did not like the way in which the bill as been pushed so quickly through the process with little public input and comment. Second, the rules and regulations for GAAMPS has not been completely written, but is incorporated within the bill as a minimum standard. I understand that there is a commitment by the Department of Agriculture that the standards for GAAMPS will be drafted however, how can we be accountable and responsive to our residents by voting for a law that still needs to be written? Third, there is no mechanism by which the public can register a complaint against an intensive livestock operation violating those, as yet, to be drafted minimum standards.

The unsuccessful attempt in drafting and developing a compromise, lead me to no other choice but to vote against the proposed legislation. I believe that a common ground still exists on this issue between all the parties involved. Unfortunately, the legislation adopted by the House does not reach this goal. As public officials I believe it is our civic duty to minimize community conflicts and try our best to help create partnerships and cooperation between all citizens. I could not in good conscience support this legislation because it does not strike the necessary balance between the needs of local farms and members of that community.”

House Resolution No. 243.

A resolution honoring Dr. Mohau Pheko.

Whereas, It is a pleasure to offer special recognition to Dr. Mohau Pheko for her 15 plus years of progressive accomplishments in strong planning and leadership skills with senior level service in the areas of economic policy formulation, operations, macroeconomics analysis, strategic-planning, funding, budgeting, negotiations, cost containment, and programme evaluation/design/development/implementation. With the record that this talented and energetic trainer/educator/researcher has compiled over the years, this is a most fitting symbol of excellence in an endeavor of great importance to every citizen, business, and institution in this state—the education of our young people; and

Whereas, Michigan has a long tradition of belief in the value of education. Dr. Mohau Pheko, who is the Convener of the African Caucus of the World Trade Organization and a Board member of the Third World Women's Chamber of Commerce, is coming to Michigan to discuss the Globalization of Africa: Its Impact on Culture, Gender, African Domestic Economies and Class at the Sankore Marine High School Academy in Detroit; and

Whereas, In receiving special recognition, Dr. Mohau Pheko is being singled out for her efforts in several areas. In addition to specific innovations in the classroom, study units, and programs, she is being honored for success in the most fundamental component of learning—motivating young people. We applaud the dedication she has consistently displayed and offer our thanks for the manner in which both students and other educators benefit from all of this hard work; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the members of this legislative body join in honoring Dr. Mohau Pheko upon her selection for special recognition honors; and be it further

House Resolution No. 244.

A resolution to commemorate March 2000 as Teacher Appreciation Month in Michigan.

Whereas, One of the most important tasks of our society is the education of our youth. Today's school students are vital to the future of our state and nation. Each generation must rely on the next for the leaders and workers of tomorrow, and our children, our most precious resource, deserve the best educational foundation that we can provide; and

Whereas, Teachers are dedicated educators who possess a concern for students, a commitment to excellence, and an enthusiastic approach to education, qualities which have inspired students, colleagues, and parents; and

Whereas, Teachers give generously of their time and talents to direct young scholars on the path to success in both their academic endeavors and the course of their lives. Teachers can take pride in the knowledge that the leadership, guidance, and sense of direction they offer to countless youngsters prepare them for the future; and

Whereas, Teachers do their best to make education fun, to help students increase their self-esteem, and to instill in them a desire to learn; and

Whereas, The people of Michigan acknowledge and recognize the tremendous efforts of teachers and we thank them and encourage them to keep up the great work; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the members of this legislative body commemorate March 2000 as Teacher Appreciation Month in Michigan. We encourage all citizens of the Great Lakes State to write and thank their favorite teachers for their commitment, hard work, and valuable contributions to our young people; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to Superintendent Arthur E. Ellis, State of Michigan Department of Education, as a symbol of the high esteem in which our teachers are held by the members of the Michigan House of Representatives.

Pending the reference of the resolution to a committee,

Rep. Raczkowski moved that Rule 77 be suspended and the resolution be considered at this time.

House Resolution No. 245.

A resolution to memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to make anthrax vaccinations in the military voluntary rather than mandatory.

Whereas, In 1997, the United States Department of Defense adopted a policy of vaccinating all military personnel against anthrax. This action was taken in response to information indicating that groups in certain countries are prepared to use bacterial agents; and

Whereas, Since that time, however, significant opposition has developed against the idea of mandatory vaccination against anthrax for all the military. This opposition includes data indicating that the vaccine may pose risks to the health of those being immunized. Some health officials, including military medical personnel, strongly believe that the vaccine holds far greater potential for harm than good for some people. Others question whether the vaccine could do any good anyway in fighting an actual attack; and

Whereas, With emerging information on the Gulf War Syndrome and the concerns over the vaccination, members of the military are voicing objections. Some have refused the vaccine. Those who have taken this step do so in spite of the threat of severe disciplinary actions; and

Whereas, While military life is, by its nature, fraught with peril, there is no justification for exposing members of the Armed Forces to unnecessary risks. Injecting potentially dangerous substances into our soldiers, sailors, Marines, and Air Force personnel, especially when the immunization may be ineffective anyway, is unwise at best. There are measures before the Congress to halt the mandatory immunization for anthrax. Making the shots voluntary is clearly a far more appropriate approach; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That we memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to make anthrax vaccinations in the military voluntary rather than mandatory; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Veterans Affairs.

Reps. Thomas, Rivet, Martinez, Kilpatrick, Switalski, Raczkowski, Reeves, DeHart, LaForge, Woodward, Dennis, Price, Hanley, Vaughn, Hardman, Jamnick, Callahan, Baird, Daniels, Kelly, Brater, Prusi, Clark, Rison, Quarles, Gielegem, Minore, Jacobs, Toy, Schermesser and Bogardus offered the following resolution:

House Resolution No. 246.

A resolution to urge the Michigan Department of Treasury and the State Tax Commission to delay the implementation of new depreciation rates for gas and electric utility transmission and distribution systems and to examine options for local units of government to recover losses.

Whereas, Earlier this year, following completion of a major study, the State Tax Commission released recommendations for new tables of depreciation for personal property. The move to update the manner in which the taxable value of equipment and machinery is determined was needed to reflect the great changes taking place in all areas of commerce; and

Whereas, In addition to the general agreement for the need to modernize depreciation tables, there was concern raised over the impact that the new personal property tax tables could have on local units of government. Because of the potential for substantial revenue losses for local units, the implementation of the new tables for utilities was delayed; and

Whereas, On November 23, 1999, with little or no input from the local units of government that stand to lose a great deal of revenue from the new rates, the State Tax Commission adopted new tables for the valuation of utility assets. This move came without any agreement on an alternate means for the local units to make up the severe loss of revenues. The communities jeopardized by the new depreciation rates have had little chance to prepare or develop other means to protect financial resources needed for services; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That we urge the Michigan Department of Treasury and the State Tax Commission to delay the implementation of new depreciation rates for utilities and to examine options for local units of government to recover losses; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the State Treasurer and the State Tax Commission.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Tax Policy.
