2006-2007 Annual Report to the Community

A public library is more than just books, it is an action-packed hub of the community.

To quote William Ecenbarger, "Libraries are an essential service, too," Christian Science Monitor, ...

Today they are meccas for the unemployed, the undereducated and the newly immigrated. Libraries are used by doctoral candidates and high school drop outs. Businessmen come for seminars on good management, teenagers come for information on AIDS, and "latchkey" children come after school lets out (Ecenbarger, 9).

Yes, in a nutshell, that is the Groversville Public Library's role in the Groversville Enlarged School District.

SERVICES AND PROGRAMMING

Services and programming are the terms used to encompass all a public library offers its patrons.

Use of the collection is reported through circulation statistics. Other service statistics include the number of visitors to the library, the number of new patrons registered, the number of computer sessions, the number of books borrowed and loaned through InterLibrary Loans, the number of newspapers and magazines read in-house, the number of databases accessed, and the number of reference questions asked and materials used.

Programming is represented by the number of programs and the number of attendees.

Statistics present a comprehensive picture that can be compared to last year, though numbers alone do not provide a comprehensive picture.

Still, and once again, those statistics show we were busy.

Circulation

Overall, circulation increased 9% from the previous year with Audio/Visual and Teen materials seeing the largest jumps. These statistics include the addition of NetLibrary, a downloadable audio book service added in January 2007.

Service & Programming Highlights

Through funding from Senator Hugh T. Farley and a partnership with local historian Davis Bixby, the Library was able to provide the Johnstown Public Library, city historians, and the Fulton County Historian with records for cemeteries throughout Saratoga and Fulton counties, and provided libraries and historical societies with indexed binders of the information.

The Library continued to host HFM-BOCES' GED classes, LVA tutoring and computer classes, an ESL Conversation Class, and tutors with students throughout the year.

"Writers All Around Us," a summer writing series held at the YWCA, was very successful and a follow up series concentrating on dialogue through playwriting was planned for the summer of 2007.

Library Visitors

The theme of the children's summer reading program for 2006 was "Books: A Treasure." A review shows over 300 children signed up and read 5,417 titles. Teens read 607 books which indicated the rotating collection from MVLS and new acquisitions are appealing to these young readers. Thirty-five programs were held during the summer with 1,436 in attendance.

The partnership with the GESD for “25 Books a Year” grew as more children and parents used the Library to meet, and in most cases surpass, this benchmark.

Children’s programming such as Science in the Summer, preschool, nursery school, Head Start and class visits continued throughout the year. Local Boy Scout, Girls Scout and Brownie troops were frequent visitors. “Safe Place,” the after school program conducted by the Foothills Methodist United Church, made trips to the Children’s Room as did Lexington’s Day Program. Homeschoolers were ever present.

Finally, on Saturday May 19th the Library hosted the 3rd Annual Literacy Day along with partners Head Start, WMHT and GESD. Sponsors for the event included Cornell Cooperative Extension, Stewarts, and Wal-Mart.

GOVERNANCE

The Gloversville Public Library sought the support from the towns of Broadalbin, Mayfield and Perth in their 2007 budgets, but was turned down by all three. The concern is that 44.5% of the population of Fulton County does not support any public library. The goal is to receive funding from the County's 2008 budget.

A collection agency was retained in an effort to resolve the serious issue of long overdue and lost items. The staff has noticed a significant reduction in the number of delinquent accounts. Fine income for the year increased as overdues and lost books were paid for.

The Library received a successful compilation report of its books from Phil Beckett, CPA for the 2005-2006 fiscal year.

Board of Trustees

The Gloversville Public Library held its second trustee election on May 1st. Incumbent, and current President, Christine Pesses unanimously won the vacant seat. Officer elections were held at the Organizational Meeting in July and remain unchanged.
