A Walk on the Wild Side

Diaries at the ready, the Residents' Journal heartily recommends making space on 22 June and 25 June for a wildflower walk in Holland Park and the Ecology Centre's Wildlife Area Open Evening. The free Wildflower and Folklore Walk in the park (22 June) will run from 2pm-4pm and anyone interested should meet at the Holland Park Ecology Centre (W8 6LU). Booking is essential. The Wildlife Area Open Evening will welcome anyone who drops by on Tuesday 25 June from 6pm-8pm and is also free. Both events present the perfect way to usher in the summer.

Art in the Park

The Eccentricity of Zero is the latest piece of contemporary art to enrich Holland Park. Created by Sinta Tantra, the artist says that her piece plays on the idea of the garden as a labyrinth, of lovers chasing each other and of veiled flirtations and words left unspoken. At the unveiling ceremony at the end of May, Councillor Nick Paget-Brown, the Leader of the Council and former Cabinet Member for Leisure, said: "The Council has been encouraging new artists with the opportunity to show their work in one of the premier sites for contemporary sculpture in London for more than a decade. The Eccentricity of Zero will attract many visitors and I am sure it will generate a great deal of discussion. I'm delighted that Sinta agreed to have her art shown in the Napoleon Garden."

Bookworms

The Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea has rolled out a new scheme that will allow GPs and mental health professionals to recommend more than 20 different expert-endorsed self-help books to those suffering mental health problems. The Reading Well Books on Prescription scheme, sponsored by the Reading Agency, was launched across libraries in the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, Westminster and Hammersmith & Fulham in June.
