

RED TEAM

Small Team Tactics

Rule 15: Simple and light equals freedom, agility and mobility.

You don't need a big team to be successful. You need the right team for that.

Adapt.

A team has to be able to change direction and flow with what's on the ground.

The mindset of the team has been focused toward fast and light.

KISS

A small and flexible team reduces the resistant to change, to adapt.

A small team communicates better, acts and reacts smoother and provides cleaner ideas.

Plans should reflect this too.

Plans should be simple enough that to allow quick changes on the fly based on the environment.

Leverage the team strength.

Team members.

A small team has rely on brain and a good designed plan.

Trust your team. Have them take active part of all phases of the planning.

Listen to the guy on the ground.

Develop the situation.

Rule 1: Always have an escape plan
