

KIDS' READS:

Whoopie Lee: The Big Spell Off

REVIEW BY
LESTER J WAN

WHOOPIE LEE, sister of 'famous' Amos Lee, is smart and sassy, but not yet famous. So, she's decided to do something about it: she'll join Singapore's National Spell Off Championship.

But wait, Morticia, Whoopie's best friend, wants to compete too. Now that is a big complication: there can be only one champ!

In their fight for fame, will the two girls have to sacrifice their friendship?

Whoopie Lee: The Big Spell Off is the latest offering from award-winning children's author Adeline Lee, of The Diary of Amos Lee fame.

Her series, The Diary of Amos Lee, has struck gold, breaking local sales records and even making waves internationally. It has even been turned into a popular children's television programme on Okto. This incarnation of Amos Lee, in the flesh, has also proven popular with the young.

Many of Amos Lee's legion of fans turned up at the launch of the final instalment of The Diary of Amos Lee - Lights, Camera, Superstar! - in November last year. While its popular run has ended, Adeline has since built a new group of fans with her subsequent book on Amos Lee's sister, Whoopie Lee.

Set after the events in Whoopie Lee: Almost Famous, The Big Spell Off promises to be both a gripping read and a hoot. Adeline's signature style of building conflict and suspense, coupled with comical outcomes, makes this a joy to read. The adorable illustration also ensures readers of various ages will find the book a pleasure.

Who will win the spelling bee? Will Whoopie and Morticia still remain BFFs (Best Friends Forever)? Pick up a copy to find out, and be entertained.

This book is illustrated by Stephanie Wong, the illustrator of The Diary of Amos Lee series.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Adeline Foo lives in Singapore with her husband and three children. She is on Facebook and blogs. If you enjoy reading this book, email her at contact@amoslee.com.sg or visit the Amos Lee website at www.amoslee.com.sg

Author: Adeline Foo

Illustrator: Stephanie Wong

Genre: Fiction, Children

Publisher: Epigram Books

Recommended retail price: $8.90 (before GST)

Release: Feb 2013