Dear Renner,

I was informed that the report that I produced on sexual abuse of international forces on children at the M'Poko camp is in the hands of French gendarmes and that I am suspected of having sent the . I want to confirm by email that I never sent the document to other people that my hierarchy within the Office. I know the importance of confidentiality in terms of human rights and the importance of the principle of "do no harm" (in particular by protecting the identity of victims) and have respected at every stage of the investigation. I encourage you to check their source directly from French to wash my suspicion.

Moreover, the police contacted me by phone yesterday, asking me to go see on my next visit to Paris (early September). I would like to know your opinion on this topic. Should I accept this invitation or not.

Kind regards,
