

NV Liqueur Muscat

My father in-law, Dick Townsend, loved to drink wine. He was famously known for enjoying prestigious and expensive bottles of red in the privacy of his lounge room bar then re-filling the empty bottle with wine given to him by his close friend John Petritti. He would share these “doctored” bottles with his shooting buddies and wait in anticipation of their favourable comments, sometimes revealing the true contents and sometimes not. It was widely known that you never really knew what you were drinking (or eating) at the Townsends. Dick kept a barrel of muscat behind his bar, originally filled with Petritti muscat, adding to it occasionally with liqueur wines, brandy etc given to him by friends.

Dick has been gone now for 8 years, passing away at a dignified age of 80. He took his olive recipe with him but left behind a barrel of sticky, black, treackly muscat. We have loosened its contents, very proudly and quite rightfully with muscat produced by the Patritti family.

Introducing Mr Wolf (whats the time?) This wine is dedicated to the Blackers, Testers, Patrittis and all who drank with Dick Townsend.

Technical Information

Artwork:	Emily Shepherd, 1940's Lino print.
Concept:	Being scared shitless the old man would turn around and catch us stealing his muscat.
Winemakers:	Dick Townsend and the Patritti family
Alc:	18.5% v/v
Nose:	Glace Orange, fruit cake and
Palate:
Best drunk when:	Lying on the lounge room floor, with your moccasins on, a block of matured cheddar and watching the cricket
Production:	Limited.....until the barrel runs out.