

Message from the Bishop

Saturday, 9 September

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

As we await the landfall of Hurricane Irma, Kate and I want to reassure you of our constant prayers for you.

Along with so many others, we have been evacuated from our home and we have been given shelter by our Roman Catholic sisters and brothers in a safe location. We are reminded daily of our mutual interdependence on the support and generosity of others, and we are seeing our Christian faith in action all around.

Here in our refuge from the storm this evening (Saturday), Kate and I shall say this Sunday's Mass for all of you and for our entire region, praying for all our communities by name.

May God bless you and keep you.

With love and prayers.

+ Peter
