CHARLES O. PEINADO, 80, ANS member since 2011; received a bachelor's degree from Johns Hopkins University and a master's degree in engineering from the California Institute of Technology in 1956; following graduation from Cal tech, took a position with Atomics International; joined General Atomics in 1960, retiring from that firm 25 years later as nuclear program operations manager; went to work for Coronado Engineers in 1986, becoming vice president and project manager; in 2001, joined the Department of Energy's National Nuclear Security Administration as a project manager and contract officer representative, earning a DOE award for efforts to remove and secure nuclear material in Kazakhstan; left government work in 2012 to found Peinado Consulting Services; died August 17, 2014, after a three-month illness.