There are several national resources with established helplines in various formats that can provide confidential help when you’re hoping to talk to someone or looking for information. Please note, there may also be state and local hotlines to connect with programs near you. This list is only of the national hotlines that can help you get started.

Many helplines and services offer multiple ways to connect, including text message or online chat for more discreet conversations. For your safety, it is important to remember that there are ways an abusive partner may be able to track and monitor your conversations. If you think your devices are being monitored, it may be helpful to think of different ways to reach out for help, such as a trusted friend’s phone. For more information on technology misuse and how to increase your privacy and safety, visit our Survivor Technology Safety & Privacy Toolkit. For specific safety and privacy considerations on communicating by phone, text, or chat, visit our resources on Seeking Help Online.

National Domestic Violence Hotline (24/7, 200+ Languages)
Phone: 1-800-799-7233
Video Call for Deaf Callers: 1-855-812-1001
Online chat (Spanish chat available)

WomensLaw.org Email Hotline (English + Spanish)
Email Hotline
National Sexual Assault Hotline (24/7, English + Spanish)
Phone: 1-800-656-4673
English Online Chat - Spanish Online Chat
Online Chat for Male Survivors (Service of 1in6.org)

National Deaf Domestic Violence Hotline (24/7)
Videophone: 1-855-812-1001
Email: nationaldeafhotline@adwas.org

The Network/La Red (24/7)
Phone: 1-800-832-1901

StrongHearts Native Helpline
Phone: 1-844-762-8583 (7 am to 10 pm CST)

National Human Trafficking Hotline (24/7, English & Spanish)
Phone: 1-888-373-7888
Text Line: Send the text “BEFREE” to 233733
Online chat
Cyber Civil Rights Initiative (24/7, Interpretation Available)
Phone: 1-844-878-2274

National Teen Dating Violence Hotline (24/7)
Phone: 1-866-331-9474
Text Line: Send the text “LOVEIS” to 22522

© 2019 National Network to End Domestic Violence, Safety Net Project. Supported by US DOJ-OVW Grant No. 2016-TA-AX-K069. Opinions, findings, and conclusions or recommendations expressed are the authors and do not necessarily represent the views of DOJ. We update our materials frequently. Please visit TechSafety.org for the latest version of this and other materials.