

About SWG Project

Founded in 2012, the Sexuality, Women, and Gender Project (SWG) was created to envision and implement the next wave of theories and practices to improve well-being in persons at the intersection of the above identities and social locations. This forum is located at Teachers College, Columbia University, a world-renowned training ground for the next generation of educators, researchers, practitioners, administrators, and activists. SWG's mission is to play a vital role in the creation of research initiatives, innovative curriculum, and institutional programming on campus and with partners beyond.

The goals of SWG are threefold:

- to promote learning through pedagogy
- to provide intensive research mentorship and production
- to apply gender and sexuality theories in practice (e.g., local schools, mental/health facilities, and community organizations)

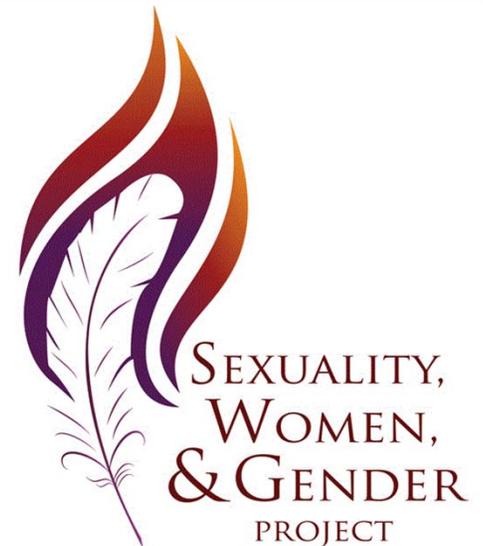

SWG's agenda is to organize didactic lectures, events, and colloquia open to students and the New York City community. SWG is developing masters- and doctoral-level certification programs while actively collaborating with TC departments to integrate sexuality and gender lenses into course offerings, and networking with outside organizations to establish fieldwork and internship placements. SWG hopes to elaborate a comprehensive research agenda that will generate and disseminate theory as well as attract cutting-edge scholars.

Our logo symbolizes our mission, from setting blaze to outdated notions, obtaining new life from the old, and most of all inspiring our passion for excellence.

Contact

swgproject@tc.columbia.edu

Women's Courses at Columbia

Enclosed is a list of courses across the Columbia campuses that address the following domains of women's lives:

- the subjective and intrapsychic experience of women
- women's relationship to their bodies & reproductive health
- the legal and political realities of women's lives
- the global reach of violence against women and maternal mortality

---

If you teach or know of a course that you would like listed, please let us know. Any seminars or events in these related topics are also welcome.

Teachers College

CCPX 4125 Women and Mental Health
CCPX 4126 The Mother-Child Matrix: Developmental & Clinical Implications
CCPJ 4068 Counseling Women
HBSS 4122 Women's Health
HUDK 5123 Psychological Development of Women

Law School

L8152 Reproductive Health & Human Rights
L9816 Meanings of Motherhood: Legal & Historical Perspective
L8006 Domestic Violence & the Law
L9169 Abortion: Law in Context

Mailman School of Public Health

P8605 Public Health Aspects of Reproductive Health
P8639 Gender-based Violence in Complex Emergencies
P8643 Maternal and Child Health in International Primary Health Care
P8671 The Globalization of Motherhood: Declining Birthrates and the Deconstruction of Biology & Care
P8675 Health Systems Approach to Maternal Mortality

Graduate School of Arts and Sciences

WMST W3915 Gender and Power in Global Perspective

School of Social Work

T6133 Social Work Practice with Women
T7311 Social Work Practice with Battered Women
T6820 Women and Social Policy

Jewish Theological Seminary

JTH 5317 Jewish Approaches to Biomedical Ethics

Union Theological Seminary

CE 255 Feminist Ethics

---

Please note that not all courses are offered every semester. Contact the department for the most current course listings and consult with your advisor to ensure your ability to receive credit for the courses out of department.