Joyce Chen lives in the Wellington-Harrington area of Cambridge. Her wide-ranging experience includes working in the federal government, academia, and nonprofits. She previously helped organize large-scale technology events, startup competitions, and accelerator programs at MIT. In her current role as the global expansion lead for Venture Café Global Institute, she has the exciting opportunity to collaborate with different stakeholders in cities across the world building tech-agnostic and inclusive community programs.