Signs from Angels

The angels exist in a very different dimension than humans do. Angels are of a fifth dimensional frequency and higher, whereas we are in third dimensional density consciousness. It's in our dimension that we experience fear, doubt, anger and worry—all emotions that will keep us from clearly hearing our angels. So what is an angel to do to reach us? Lay out signs like a yellow brick road.

Some can attune their energy to a level where they can easily hear angels. But for people who do not commit to this level of communication, angelic guidance is still readily available. Often, as we go about our lives, we dismiss signs and synchronicities as “coincidences” or some psychological anomaly. In truth, the angels are laying hints to spark an experience in our hearts that has the power to break through negativity walls. With these walls down, angelic encounters can occur, resulting in freer communication. Until then, there are the signs.

Symbols are a common tool angels use to communicate. The most known of these would be white feathers, as we associate angels with feathered wings. This symbol is especially heart-warming when there would be no other reason for feathers to be around. The next time you see a tiny white feather floating before you, know that the angels are trying to comfort you.

Asking your angel to send you a symbol of their presence is a wonderful way to know your angel is near. Simply ask your angel to show you how they will present to you and notice where your eye is drawn. It might be an animal that becomes your angel’s signal to you, a certain color or merely a shape. Whatever the sign, it will be personal to you and true to the connection with your guardian angel or angels.

Another sign that the angels are around is through roses. Roses, like feathers, can be very common, but smelling roses when none are about is not typical. Or suddenly noticing images of roses for the first time, especially in a place that you’ve been to many times before, is very special. It’s a sign your angels are around and that blessings are at hand because you are open and ready for them. If you’re in a confusing or tough situation, encountering roses or rose petals is a sign that your situation will improve, and you’ll be better for the lessons you’ve learned. Of course smelling Frankincense, Myrrh or Spikenard would also be signs, but this occurs less often for most people.

Number patterns are a very big sign that the angels are trying to connect with you. Many report this beginning with repeating 1s. Seeing this pattern is a call to ascension and asking you to start being more aware of your spirit. From there, one may begin to see repeating 4s, which would be the angels letting you know that they are with you and supporting you. Repeating 7s means you are absolutely on the right path and you are doing well, and that Heaven blesses you.

Words and phrases are a big way angels try to reach humans. This can sometimes be through actual signs with a saying that pertains to your situation, or through song lyrics. When it comes to music with a message, pay close attention to the refrain or the chorus of the song. The repetition is often the message they are trying to convey to you. You might also overhear someone talk about the very thing you were thinking of, or a message could come through a fellow human, though they may not be cognizant of why they feel the need to say such things to you.

If you are truly spiritually open, the angels could be communicating to you through your intuition and dreams. You may dream of a solution or merely have a feeling that everything will be all right, even if circumstances point to the contrary. Pay attention to these feelings as the angels are in fact letting you know that you are heading in the direction you are meant to. Conversely, if you are not heading in the right direction, expect the angels to show you this by putting obstacles in your way. That flat tire may have seemed like a giant burden, but could have saved you from something else.

Live in a state of gratitude for all the miracles the angels bring you every day. Even if you do not hear them as clearly as you would like, solutions and help are still always available. We only need to be aware of how the angels have adjusted their language to help us understand. We are ever guided, helped, and loved. Remember this, and your energy will rise in frequency, creating a moment of magic when you recognize the signs of angels.
