

The Fifth Gospel Interview Questions:

1. The Fifth Gospel. That's a creative and potentially controversial title, what are you getting at?
2. In the book, you seek to show how the Christian can distinguish him/herself in the world.
What are some of the ways you believe we can really stand out as Christians before a watching world?
3. In your chapter, Fools for Christ you share how God often invites us to do the ridiculous.
What do you mean by that?
4. How can our weaknesses show something great about God?
5. You say, "Love is the ultimate trump card!" How so?
6. You contend that joy is one of the missing links to effective evangelism today. What do you mean by that statement?
7. You've posed the question, "Are you a Fifth Gospel Christian." Why do you think that's such an important question for us to be asking in today's culture?
8. You've talked about being an audio/visual Christian? What do you mean by that?
9. When all is said and done what do you hope to have accomplished through writing of this book?
