Jonas Wood
“Color is something that I am really into. I guess everyone is into color in some way. Color is a balancing act. When color challenges you, and tells you a plant is blue not green, then maybe color can ask you new questions about what you are seeing.”

As told to Amanda Law
Hammer Museum, Los Angeles

Jonas Wood (American, b. 1977) is an artist who lives and works in Los Angeles. He is represented by David Kordansky Gallery, Los Angeles, and Anton Kern Gallery, New York.

His work is currently exhibited in a two-person show (with Shin Kuniyuki) entitled “Backwader” at Gagosian Gallery, Hong Kong, through 20 February, 2015. A fully illustrated catalogue produced with KARMA, New York and including a new text by Chris Wiley, is forthcoming.