IATSE TRAINING TRUST FUND PROGRAMS

Calendared Course programs (includes TTF OSHA 10-GES and TTF AV Essentials courses): These are the courses that the TTF schedules to reach workers in high need/high demand areas. The TTF selects the locations for these classes based on a variety of factors and presents a calendar once classes are scheduled.

Curriculum Development: We have a comprehensive, customized 16 module Entertainment Safety curriculum that was developed and designed specifically for us. This curriculum is available to locals and used across the US and Canada. What makes this curriculum special is that there are case studies from the various crafts to go with the safety modules. This makes the curriculum relevant to the various crafts and means it is customizable based on the group being taught. The curriculum was developed by the UCLA Labor Occupational Safety and Health program. We are planning to develop additional safety modules.

Curriculum Library: We have curricula available for our General Entertainment Safety training, AV Essentials training and modules of the UCLA developed IATSE TTF Safety First! Curriculum.

InfoComm Partnership – We have a partnership with InfoComm that allows IATSE workers to obtain free memberships to the organization when they sign up through the TTF. The TTF website has information about benefits of InfoComm membership.

OSHA Outreach Trainer Support: This is a great opportunity for locals in areas without an OSHA Outreach Trainer in their area, to develop their own in-house OSHA Outreach Trainer. These new trainers are added to our trainer database and available to conduct OSHA trainings for neighboring locals.

Supported Course program: This program offers a reimbursement to locals offering their own skills and certification training. Reimbursements are intended to help defray the cost of providing group training. Applications need to be submitted and approved at least a week and preferably 3-4 weeks prior to training. Locals and/or signatory employers wanting to hold a training class and wanting to know whether the TTF can support it through reimbursement should fill out an application and submit it prior to the class taking place. TTF Train the Trainer: Teaching Techniques and Presentation Skills: We offer a Train the Trainer course across the US and Canada in centrally based locations to develop high quality trainers with the ability to deliver safety and skills training at the local level. This increases capacity at the local and regional levels to offer training. This workshop was designed to take IATSE workers who are experts in their craft who are or will be training at their local and teaches them education and training techniques to improve their presentation and sharpen their skills as teachers. We turn subject matter experts into great teachers who can make lesson plans and deliver content to members in a way that makes it easy to learn. TTF Train the Trainer: Master Class for Course Development: We developed a train the trainer workshop for graduates of the TTF Train the Trainer: Teaching Techniques course. This two-day intensive workshop is intended for individuals who have conducted at least 4 safety or craft skills training classes for their local since attending the Train the Trainer: Teaching Techniques course. The course is designed to take abstract theories and concepts and develop various types of activities to help teach that concept/theory. Workshop participants come to class with the concrete lesson they want to develop/further develop and work in class on their lesson plans. By the end of the Master Class, course participants create 8 activities they can incorporate throughout their new/revised course to demonstrate the theory based portion of their class. Participants must meet the course requirements and be nominated/selected by their locals to attend. Link: <http://www.iatsetrainingtrust.org/train-the-trainer/>

Trainer Database: We collect the names of craft and safety trainers across the US and Canada in our database. Any local and/or signatory employer wishing to find a trainer in a specific craft or geography can contact the TTF and we will send them a list of trainers to choose from for their locally organized training.

Training Tracker: We refined our database to be able to track the safety training and certifications of all IATSE affiliated craftspeople across the US and Canada. The IATSE TTF can keep track of your course records and certifications held by your members. The TTF database has the capacity to keep track of all IATSE craftspeople, their TTF training, local group training and certifications they hold. Designated local officers and signatory employers are able to search the TTF database to see the courses taken by individuals. Please note: Locals are only able to search among individuals within their local. This service is being provided by the TTF so locals do not need to reinvent the wheel when it comes to maintaining electronic records of training. Link: <http://www.ttftracker.org>
