

“There is titanic competition among the museums in New York right now... Contemporary audiences are more interested in relevance than class. The Met is the classiest museum around—but that doesn’t mean it’s the coolest, and I think this is their attempt to refresh the brand.”