Sarabande Books is a nonprofit literary press founded in Louisville, Kentucky. Established in 1994 to champion poetry, fiction, and essay, we are committed to creating lasting editions that honor exceptional writing. With nearly 300 titles in print, we have earned a dedicated readership and a national reputation as a publisher of diverse forms and innovative voices. Through our free arts programming Sarabande Writing Labs and Flo Gault Student Poetry Prize, we are proud to invest in emerging writers and serve as an educational resource locally and nationally.

MASTHEAD
Sarah Gorham, Founder
Kristen Renee Miller, Executive Director & Editor-in-Chief
Sam Hall, Director of Development
Joanna Englert, Director of Marketing & Publicity
Danika Isdahl, Managing Editor
Natalie Wollenzien, Publishing Assistant

Sarabande Books
735 Lampton Street, Suite 201 | Louisville, KY 40203
www.sarabandebooks.org
2022 HIGHLIGHTS

THE MAN WITH EIGHT PAIRS OF LEGS
Leslie Campbell | Stories
2022 WNBA GREAT GROUP READS SELECTION

“[A] remarkable collection—every story a deep dive well worth taking.”
SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

“You’ll remember its vivid imagery and smart turns of phrase.”
STANFORD MAGAZINE

DEAR DAMAGE
Ashley Marie Farmer | Essay
2022 INTERNATIONAL RUBERY BOOK AWARDS NONFICTION WINNER

“Remembering an act of violence born not out of malice, but love, Farmer’s narrative is melancholic, but still full of hope.”
THE NEW YORK TIMES

“[T]he moments she depicts teem with power.”
PUBLISHERS WEEKLY, STARRED REVIEW

BRIGHT
Kiki Petrosino | Essays

“[Petrosino’s] work packs a hefty punch.”
PUBLISHERS WEEKLY, STARRED REVIEW

“New and Noteworthy”
POETS & WRITERS

“A spare, affecting, lyrical memoir.”
KIRKUS REVIEWS
A NEW RACE OF MEN FROM HEAVEN

Chaitali Sen | Stories | January
Winner of the 2021 Mary McCarthy Prize selected by Danielle Evans

“The stories in A New Race of Men from Heaven move elegantly between the ache of loneliness and the grace of connection, however fleeting.”
—Danielle Evans, author of The Office of Historical Corrections

“These are wonderful stories—Chaitali Sen’s characters are such dear human beings: mysterious and lovable, irritable and alive. Each story is beautiful but together they are even better, about the anxieties and amnesias of our time, how strange and essential we are to each other. Above all they are truly surprising, in the way of life itself.”
—Elizabeth McCracken, author of The Souvenir Museum

A New Race of Men from Heaven is a collection of stories about characters who wander but are never truly lost. A lonely man on a business trip finds himself in the middle of a search party for a missing boy; a grieving widow leaves India to join family in the United States; a writer finds renewed success when an unknown imposter begins publishing under his identity. In these quiet yet deeply knowing stories of migration, power, and longing, A New Race of Men from Heaven offers us, above all else, stories of enduring love and hope.

Chaitali Sen’s short stories and essays have appeared in Boulevard, Colorado Review, Ecotone, Electric Literature, New England Review, Shenandoah, and many other publications. She is the author of the novel The Pathless Sky and holds an MFA from Hunter College. Born in India and raised in the US, she currently lives in Texas with her family.

ISBN 978-1-956046-02-1; paperback; 5.5 x 8.25 in; 190 pages; $17.95
“Karisma Price speaks with a wink, a sigh, a knitted brow when she says she’s always so serious. She speaks as someone raised on a gumbo of James Baldwin and James Booker, Buckjumping and Brooklyn. She speaks as your phone’s autocorrect, your remixed song lyrics, your friendly neighborhood fortune teller. Price speaks directly to and for you while speaking distinctly for herself. These are the masterful portraits, mercurial testimonies, and verbal inventions of our imminent poet of the new school/south, the next generation. I’m Always so Serious is brilliant.”

—Terrance Hayes, winner of the National Book Award for Lighthead

“In I’m Always so Serious, Karisma Price takes an unflinching look at personal, familial, racial, historical, and national violences in order to celebrate her survival of them. But Price is honest about the cost of that survival: ‘I refuse to make either of us cry in this poem so//I’ll just tell you that the willow weeps.’ These poems are intimate in ways that enlist our inclusion as readers in every line and scene. And yet, they are bold enough to mark and make clear a city as romantic and mythologized as New Orleans. This is a brilliant debut by a poet we should continue to watch.”

—Jericho Brown, winner of the Pulitzer Prize for The Tradition

Karisma Price’s work has appeared in Poetry, Four Way Review, Wildness, The Adroit Journal, and elsewhere. She has received fellowships from Cave Canem and New York University, was a finalist for the 2019 Manchester Poetry Prize, and awarded The 2020 J. Howard and Barbara M.J. Wood Prize from The Poetry Foundation. She is from New Orleans, Louisiana, and holds an MFA in poetry from New York University. She is currently an Assistant Professor of Poetry at Tulane University.

ISBN 978-1-956046-04-5; paperback; 6.5 x 9 in; 112 pages; $16.95
“These tales by Wil Weitzel have the still, piney quietude you find in a forest when a gust of air brings a scent rustling through. Then just like that they’re over, and something special lingers. What magic, what beauty there is in these pages.”

—John Freeman, author of Wind, Trees

“This taut gathering of gorgeously written stories, dense with apex predators—sharks, snakes, lions, lynxes, wolves, and, most of all, people—makes a stately but impassioned case for the illimitable value of the natural world and our life-giving relationship to it . . . Weitzel is part stylist and part shaman.”

—Matthew Thomas, New York Times-bestselling author of We Are Not Ourselves

In this adventurous debut collection lurk stories that are deep, lush, and full of wonder. While camping in the Kalahari Desert, a couple grows attached to a starving lion on the cusp of death; meanwhile, just north of the Smokies, a young boy is held captive by a dangerous old man who hunts dogs for sport; and off the Hawai’ian coast, lovers kayak into the ocean to observe a tiger shark. The characters of these stories are complex, the prose buoyant, rhythmic, and fiercely knowing. Nights from This Galaxy captures the spirit of a wild and wonderful planet and all of its inhabitants, while nodding to the slow grief that binds us all.

Wil Weitzel received a PhD in Comparative Literature from Harvard University and an MFA in Fiction Writing from New York University Writers Workshop in Paris. His stories have appeared or are forthcoming in Alaska Quarterly Review, Conjunctions, Crazyhorse, EPOCH, Kenyon Review, The O. Henry Prize Stories, and Prairie Schooner, among others. He received a New York City Emerging Writers Fellowship at the Center for Fiction and won the Washington Square Review Flash Fiction Award.
“‘The camera can make a fool of a realist,’ says the speaker in the opening poem of Holly Mitchell’s debut collection Mare’s Nest. This claim—equal parts provocation and invitation—prepares the reader for the vivid portraits that follow: part family lore, part coming-of-age, part naturalist study. In these spare poems, vulnerability and a radical openness to the other—both human and animal—sing without sentimentality.”

—Catherine Barnett, author of Human Hours

“Full of both ache and praise, Mare’s Nest is a calling, a conjuring, a blessed airborne gallop embodying all the love and complications of home. This collection stunts, stunts, envelops, rises, and arrives trailing with shelled green beans, the gulping of creek water and the pregnant sigh and heat of longing, searching, finding exactly who we are and where we belong.”

—Ellen Hagan, author of Blooming Fiascoes

“I can’t remember the last time such compelling poetry was made out of a subject so intensely specific—Nick Flynn’s Blind Huber comes to mind, or Thomas Lynch’s Skating with Heather Grace. . . . You’ll be dropped into the intimate dailiness of a Kentucky farm and a family, with Mitchell’s beautiful and bittersweet specificity as stark and gripping as Elizabeth Bishop’s. And there’s a lexicon at the end! This is a book whose subject is often the past but whose place is firmly with us in the present.”

—Matthew Rohrer, author of The Sky Contains the Plans

Holly Mitchell is a poet from Kentucky, now based in New York. A winner of an Amy Award from Poets & Writers, Mitchell received an MFA in Creative Writing from New York University. Her poems have appeared or are forthcoming in Streaming, Afternoon Visitor, and the Lambda Literary Poetry Spotlight, among other journals.
“Louisville represent! I’m excited to see that Joy Priest has compiled a textured range of contemporary River City voices that capture the traditions, protests, memories, and spirit that is uniquely Louisville. This anthology is an engaging read that spans voices, styles, and experiences. A wonderful accomplishment that says once and for all that Louisville has its own dazzling slice of Kentucky’s literary legacy.”

—Crystal Wilkinson, Kentucky’s Poet Laureate and author of Perfect Black

A project conceived in the wake of Louisville’s 2020 protests, Once a City Said showcases the polyvocal literary communities borne from and within a city historically burdened by social injustice. What emerges is an intimate report of the socioeconomic circumstances of a city misshapen by segregation, a growing tourism industry, and subsequent ruptures in the public trust, and a collection that takes the community’s narrative out of the mouths of politicians, news anchors and police chiefs, and puts it into the mouths of poets. Featuring thirty-seven acclaimed and emerging poets—including Mitchell H. Douglas, Erin Keane, Ryan Ridge, and Hannah L. Drake—Once a City Said archives the traditions and icons, landmarks and spirits, portraits and memories most personal to the Derby City.

Joy Priest was born and raised in Louisville, Kentucky across the street from the world’s most famous horse racing track. She is the author of Horsepower (Pitt Poetry Series, 2020), winner of the Donald Hall Prize for Poetry, and is a National Endowment for the Arts fellow. Her poems have appeared in American Poetry Review, Academy of American Poets’ Poem-a-Day series, and The Atlantic, among others, as well as in commissions for the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston (MFAH) and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA). Priest received her MFA in poetry with a certificate in Women & Gender Studies from the University of South Carolina.
“The Book of Disbelieving is filled with beauteous, beguiling wonders . . . but the most affecting magic here is profoundly human: the unknowability of others (and of ourselves); the mysteries of love and loss. Morse conjures the fantastic with such gorgeous, vivid precision we yearn for it to be real, much as his characters yearn to believe in each other.”

—Peter Ho Davies, author of the Man Booker Prize-longlisted book The Welsh Girl

“The stories in David Lawrence Morse’s The Book of Disbelieving are located somewhere between what used to be called ‘the real world’ and the world of fables, mirror-realities, and dreams. . . . Reader, be prepared for a mind-bending journey to places you have never been before.”

—Charles Baxter, author of The Sun Collective

Set amid wholly unique and fabulist worlds, the stories of The Book of Disbelieving present a cast of characters tangled in challenges of faith, whether in god, in nature, in memory, or even in reality. These are stories of villages built atop fish, of holidays designed to encourage literal leaps of faith, of widows left to make sense of memories both real and imagined. Steeped in the existential crises of our era, The Book of Disbelieving is a modern book of fables and lore. Behold this book with wonder.

David Lawrence Morse earned an MFA in fiction at the University of Michigan. He is now the director of the writing program at the Jackson School of Global Affairs at Yale. His work has appeared in The Washington Post, One Story, Missouri Review, Alaska Quarterly Review, The O. Henry Prize Stories, and elsewhere. His first play, Quartet, was performed by the Takács Quartet and the Colorado Shakespeare Festival.
“In these poems, mercy grapples with forgiveness; kindness grapples with wickedness. They probe paradoxical feelings of presence and elusiveness: ‘we never remember the men / who we cannot forget.’ Elsewhere we read, ‘Each of us is a scorched page: part narrative, part dream.’ Master grapples with dream and memory: the song of hands in motion and the story of hands in action. This lyric and spare work is like the poet’s image of a Rottweiler holding butterflies in its mouth before letting them free. The poems can feel solitary and deliberate as ‘a sparring partner dancing to his own music.’ They can feel sensual and are poetic as ‘the water dripping off his body like missed syllables.’ Yes, I could introduce this book using nothing but dazzling excerpts. They reckon with the inexpressible. Beauty is set free from a mouth with fangs. I’m proud to select Master for the Kathryn A. Morton Prize.”

—Terrance Hayes, winner of the National Book Award for Lighthead

Simon Shieh is a Taiwanese American poet and essayist. He has lived in upstate New York and Beijing, China, where he co-founded Spittoon Literary Magazine, which translates the best new Chinese writing into English. From 2008-2014 he competed as an amateur and professional Muay Thai fighter in China, Brazil, Argentina, Thailand, and the U.S. In 2021 he was named a Ruth Lilly and Dorothy Sargent Rosenberg Poetry Fellow by the Poetry Foundation and in that same year moved to the U.S. with his wife, Charlotte, and their dog, Momo.
Death to the old cliché of the self-destructive poet drinking about writing, destroying themselves and others in pursuit of their tortured genius. It is true, many writers have managed to produce great work while grappling their addictions, but one wonders what Hemingway, Berryman, Bishop might’ve been able to generate with full cognitive loadouts at their command. Here, we intend to celebrate the work of writers who have grappled, are grappling with this disease, who do not mythologize or glamorize addiction but instead live beside it, around it, through it. An alcoholic drinks to forget, a writer writes to remember, and alcoholic writers find themselves at the nexus of a fascinating, devastating friction.

Paige Lewis is the author of Space Struck (Sarabande Books, 2019). Their poems have appeared in Poetry, American Poetry Review, Ploughshares, and elsewhere. They teach writing at the University of Iowa.
2024 PREVIEW

RICKY & OTHER LOVE STORIES
Whitney Collins | Stories | January

NEW STORIES
Moira McCavana | Stories | February

READER, I
Corey Van Landingham | Poetry | April

HOW TO DISAPPEAR AND WHY
Kyle Minor | Essays | June

NEW AND SELECTED STORIES
Brian Leung | Stories | August
INDIVIDUAL BOOK ORDERS
It is our mission to keep our books available in print and as eBooks. Please visit Sarabande Books to explore our new titles and browse our backlist.

BULK BOOK ORDERS
All of our books are available through our distributor Consortium Book Sales and Distribution (CBSD). Bulk book orders must be placed through our distributor as we cannot process large orders and returns.

EXAM OR DESK COPIES FOR EDUCATORS
Visit our academic request page on our website to request a desk or exam copy of any title currently available. Complimentary desk copies are made available to educators who have already adopted the title. If you are still considering the book, there is a $7 fee for the exam copy. We also provide educators with the resources they need to teach contemporary literature in the classroom including our Reader’s Guides.

MARKETING REQUESTS
To request an advanced review copy (ARC) or a galley (uncorrected proof) for reviewing, or to request an author appearance at your bookstore, university, or event, please contact the director of marketing and publicity, Joanna Englert.
EMMA HINE
KATHRYN NUERNBERGER
WHITNEY COLLINS
PAUL GRINER
ISABEL DUARTE-GRAY
KATHLEEN OSSIP
AMY WRIGHT
CHELSEA B. DESAUTELS
TYLER BARTON

ELIZABETH HUGHEY
LESLIE KIRK CAMPBELL
ASHLEY MARIE FARMER
KARYNA MCGLYNN
SALLIE BINGHAM
CJ EVANS
KIKI PETROSINO
CHANTE L. REID
LAUREN HALDEMAN

2023
CHAITALI SEN
KARISMA PRICE
WIL WEITZEL
HOLLY MITCHELL
JOY PRIEST
DAVID LAWRENCE MORSE
KYLE MINOR
SIMON SHIEH
KAVEH AKBAR & PAIGE LEWIS

2024
WHITNEY COLLINS
MOIRA MCCAVANA
COREY VAN LANDINGHAM
BRIAN LEUNG

SARABANDE BOOKS
2023