Happy 90th Birthday Jack Winieski

Allegheny Society of American Foresters
Fall 2020
The winter training meeting hosted by the West Virginia Division was in peril of succumbing to Mother Nature with a winter storm bearing down on the northeast and a government shutdown potentially preventing many of our members and guest speakers from attending. Although these nature and man-made created problems caused some members and students from making the training it was one of the best attended meetings in some years. The most impressive elements of the meeting besides presenting the recognition awards and seeing old friends and meeting new friends were the discussions on diversity and engagement.

I will digress a little and bring in an example of my personal life that I believe ties in to these topics. I have been married to my wife Donna for 42 ½ years. We actually moved in together 6 ½ years prior to us making our commitment legal albeit our love would withstand any legal binding. The relationship has never been perfect and I don't see how any relationship can be in an imperfect world. However, we did and do strive for perfection in our life and that is the way...
2020 will be remembered as one of the most challenging Fire Years in American History. The year began with our nation’s support for the unprecedented fires in Australia, and has continued through a global pandemic, with fire suppression efforts continuing throughout the American West to this day. We endured a weak Monsoon in the Southwest that never truly developed into fire season ending rainfall, extreme lightening in August through California and the Pacific Northwest and historic wind events in early September that fanned fires from Washington State to Southern California. At the peak of the fire year, more than 32,000 firefighters were deployed throughout the country. So far, in 2020 more than 8.5 million acres have burned in the United States.

Despite the challenges caused by COVID-19, firefighters from across the Allegheny Region deployed to support the national effort. Several Allegheny SAF members contributed their skills, leadership and time serving on incident management teams, or as fireline resources, overhead or in other support roles.

Personally, I had the opportunity to serve as a Division Supervisor on the Mullen Fire in September and October on the Medicine Bow National Forest in Wyoming. It was a challenging late-season fire assignment. I valued the opportunity to contribute to the effort and I commend all of you in the Allegheny SAF who deployed this year. Thank you all for your contributions, and for serving our nation while protecting our public lands.

Upon return from the fire assignment, I received the news that we were formally selected to host the 2022 Society of American Foresters National Convention, to be held in Baltimore, September 18-23. I can’t think of a better way for us to celebrate our 100th Anniversary! I recently participated in the Virtual National Convention, and I am quickly realizing the magnitude of our task ahead. When the call for assistance comes, please consider lending a hand… we’re going to need a team to deliver a quality convention.

Finally, I wanted to mention a word about membership… the National SAF has seen a decline in membership for decades. The Allegheny SAF is following this trend with a gradual decline in membership. Moreover, a large component our membership is of retirement age, which leads me to the concern that our membership decline may continue. I am hopeful that the excitement generated by our centennial year and the 2022 convention will boost our membership, but we all need to do our part to promote, recruit and retain. Please invite a colleague to a meeting, encourage them to renew their membership, or support a student when you are able.
I look forward to seeing everyone again when we are able to return to in-person meetings. Thank you for all that you do for our profession and the Allegheny SAF. I am at your service, and it is my privilege to be your chair.

Board of Directors Report

District 7 Representative – David Gwaze

COVID-19 has created and is continuing to create major disruptions to SAF activities. One thing that Covid-19 has highlighted is the importance of adapting to new conditions. Many SAF events were cancelled, postponed or some were or will be held virtually.

Our biggest event, SAF convention, will be held virtually. This will be the first time that the convention has been held virtually. Conducting the SAF convention virtually is great opportunity to learn what works and what does not work and use that information to guide SAF to make decisions on how future conventions will be held. One advantage of a virtual convention is that it gives an opportunity to more members to attend because registration fees are less and there are no travel costs. I want to encourage all ANSAF members to attend the virtual SAF convention.

Highlights from Board meetings:

- Committee on Professional Recognition proposed a new Local Unit Achievement Award as a new National Award and at the August meeting the Board approved the Award. This award recognizes the outstanding achievement of a local unit for sustained leadership or a special project benefiting SAF, the forestry profession, and the practice of forestry. Any state society, division, or chapter is eligible.
- The SAF building was sold. The Board approved a proposal for a new headquarters location, and a lease was signed at 2121 K ST NW, Washington, DC. This location will put SAF Headquarters near many of our partner organizations.
- SAF hired Darnell Pinson as the new Manager, Membership and hired Franklin Parham as the new Manager, Development and Fundraising.
- With the July close, our SAF net assets are $22.9 million ($23 million in assets and $129 thousand in liabilities). These numbers do not include the $2.09 million proceeds from the building sale. We are now forecasting to end 2020 at $16.1 million (minus building sale proceeds) in net assets.
- SAF membership is currently 9,543 (as of 7/31/20)
  - In 2019, our numbers were 10,222
  - In 2018, our numbers were 10,454
- We have 372 new SAF members (as of 7/31/20)
  - In 2019, our numbers were 390
  - In 2018, our numbers were 326
• Probing audits of our Association Management System continue to identify issues that went unidentified for several years by former staff and require immediate action to resolve.
  o Staff are developing reports that will help to prevent similar issues from occurring moving forward and developing SOPs to ensure current staff are trained correctly.
• As of July 31, 516 people had registered for the 2020 National Convention
• CF/CCF’s can check for COVID-19 FAQs (testing centers in a re-opening phase nationally and globally)
• New opportunities for continuing education are being added to ForestEd
• Three COVID-related resources have been developed for leaders: Practical meeting planning steps to consider; engaging members during the pandemic; and an FAQ on considerations when resuming in-person meetings.
• SAF with multiple forestry entities signed a letter highlighting the economic and environmental impacts to working forests and rural communities resulting from the Presidential Proclamation suspending the entry of nonimmigrants to the United States under H-2B visas.
  o This letter and other efforts have resulted in an exemption pathway for forestry H-2B workers
• SAF submitted comments supporting Bureau of Land Management’s (BLM) proposed new Categorical Exclusion to streamline review of timber salvage projects.
• SAF helped support an amendment to the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA).
• Three position statements were approved by the Board:
  1. Regulation of Genetically Modified Trees
  2. Forest Management, Carbon, and Climate Change
  3. Parcelization, Fragmentation and the Loss of Private Forestland in the US
• The Board Approve a decision to move forward to development a position statement on “Sustainability of American Forests.”

District Representative: As you know, my term as your district representative ends December three-year term of 2021-2023. I am happy to announce that two candidates applied to fill my position. Voting for National Vice President and District VII Board Representative will occur between October 1-31. Watch your email inbox for your ballot.

- Since Sept 30, have paid Susan’s stipend from Q3.
- Stock account balance as of Aug 31 $63,526 has recovered most of the losses incurred since market changes beginning in March.

Dues – Mike Huneke, Cecile Stelter, Steve Resh
- Can’t have language in bylaws related to chapter dues
- Lori Rasor is happy to help facilitate this process for us if we provide documentation related to bylaw requirement
- Jonathan referenced Allegheny bylaws – articles 3 and 4 mention failure to pay dues, other general language about annual dues, how to pay dues, how transfers work, etc. No specific language about specific dues.
- Direction to chapters:
  - If chapters have bylaws, they will need to vote to change the bylaws to do away with chapter dues.
  - If chapters don’t have bylaws, National is willing to help develop bylaws. And in lieu of bylaws, chapters would default to the Allegheny bylaws and need to have a meeting with documented minutes to eliminate dues with definitions of what constitutes a full member vote.
  - Alternatively, chapters can vote to set the chapter dues at $0 and do not have to change bylaws.

- First year of inductees Feb 2022
- Action items
  - Refine/finalize draft, approve at next executive committee meeting
  - Move narrative to website
  - Review the need to change bylaws to make this happen. Will later tackle other administrative/logistical steps – form a standing committee? Move in with awards

Communicating Forestry: A Writing Workshop Series

PRESENTED BY THE ROTHROCK CHAPTER OF ALLEGHENY SAF

Always look for the story to tell, be well-read, seek critique, and practice, practice, practice. These are just a few of the recommendations provided by “featured writers” during the Rothrock Chapter’s four-session Writing Workshop. The Chapter endeavors to create an ongoing, interactive, and collaborative group within the Allegheny Division, one which can support other SAF writers throughout the entire writing process. Workshop participants can become members of the nascent Rothrock Writers Guild to provide editing, expertise, and perspective to one another from brainstorming to final draft revision.

After hosting the Allegheny SAF Winter Meeting in February, our Executive Committee took a relatively long break to recuperate. We came back together in the late spring, still fresh into the COVID-directed reality to determine how we would follow-up with a summer event. A virtual meeting seemed both an inescapable and an appropriate opportunity to focus on writing. Writing is a skill almost always overlooked in training workshops or CEU opportunities, and an important element of the forestry profession which many of us either do not enjoy or have a hard time embracing. We all write every day. As speaker Jeff Larkin shared in Session 3 of our series, those 100+ emails every day do count! The goal of this workshop series is to provide each other with tools to take our professional writing to the next level – strengthening our communication at the technical level while at the same time creating pieces that people will enjoy reading.

The idea quickly flourished into reality as we identified a group of diverse and inspirational writers representing both traditional and modern compositions. With help from the PA Division of SAF, we received a grant from the SAF Foresters’ Fund. Sanford “Sandy” Smith, a Forest Resources Extension specialist at Penn State, has been our guide during the series, interviewing each presenter with the knowledge, cadence, and demeanor of an NPR-host.

For the opening session, we snagged the incredibly versatile Van Wagner. A logger, educator, and prolific musician - Van described his writing process from his porch on a lovely central Pennsylvania day. Van always carries a notebook with him to capture fleeting ideas for songs and articles. Ideas can come at the most inopportune time and, try as you like to remember them later, you won’t. Van was also the first of many in our series to emphasize the importance of storytelling. He is a master of the art, particularly in song and on social media. Toward the end of our hour together, a truck backed into his driveway to drop a load of logs for he and his son to cut for firewood, and Van left us by performing a crowd favorite, Crosscut Saw.

Clare Boerigter followed Van in that first session. Clare, studying for a master’s degree in Fine Arts (MFA), focuses on writing creative non-fiction. She teaches an entire writing course with students using the practice of “workshopping” each other’s writing at the University of Minnesota. Still early in her career, she has created several written pieces documenting her time as a wildland firefighter in the west. Our committee plans to invite Clare back to help kick-off the first workshopping event for the Writers Guild following the formal workshop series.

In the following sessions, we enjoyed conversations with seven other writers. Dominick Swentosky, a fly-fishing guide, started as an English major at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He publishes his work on www.troutbitten.com. His 600 + essays and articles provide an engrossing look at the details of fly-fishing and time spent on local waters. Dominick’s prose captures the reader’s imagination skillfully melding creative and technical details. Even those who do not fly-fish are drawn in! His example will hopefully inspire others in the forestry profession to follow suit.

Annie Maloney is the current Executive Director of the Foundation for Sustainable Forests. She writes for a very different audience and purpose, aiming to motivate private landowners to apply sustainable forestry practices to their properties. To achieve that goal, Annie weaves in personal narratives of her own families’ successes and challenges managing their forested with a call to action for members of the Foundation and local community.
https://www.foundationforsustainableforests.org/

Charles “Chuck” Fergus is a native of central Pennsylvania, transplanted to Vermont. Chuck presented the most traditional writing background of our group, capturing the beauty of forests and wildlife in his works of non-fiction while more recently exploring the world of fiction in writing a series of murder-mysteries. He has written extensively for the PA Game News, authored several novels and numerous non-fiction guides and books on forests and wildlife. He has also published in varied outlets such as the New York Times, Ranger Rick, and Readers Digest. During their conversation, Sandy and Chuck created a meditative exchange between them, transporting everyone into the world of a science writer. As with every other session, this interview is not to be missed! https://charlesfergus.com/
Jeff Larkin, a professor of wildlife biology at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, is an expert in and proponent of early successional habitat for golden-winged warbler (GWW) and other migrant birds. Immediately after entering medical school, GWW and the lure of field work snatched Jeff away from becoming an MD. The power of deep reading, relating to your audience, and good mentorship helped him overcome his natural tendency to avoid writing. Similar to our other presenters, Jeff emphasized finding purpose in a compelling story not only for the reader, but also for yourself, and using that to guide you through the chore of writing. https://www.iup.edu/biology/faculty/jeff-larkin/

The final session focused on the more technical aspects of writing, inviting James “Jim” Finley, well-known slasher of words and king of the red line. Jim shared his extensive expertise in both research and extension writing, providing an especially utilitarian perspective on the art of writing. We discussed the differences between academic and journalistic writing, especially the challenges faced in the peer review process for research papers. https://ecosystems.psu.edu/directory/fj4

Following Jim, we had a great conversation with both Nancy Baker and Steve Wilent. Nancy is the editor of Pennsylvania Forests magazine (http://www.paforestry.org/) and Steve is the editor for SAFs The Forestry Source (https://www.eforester.org/Main/Library/Forestry_Source.aspx). Besides discussing the specific needs of both publications, we also talked about the more challenging aspects of balancing the needs of diverse audiences, and the type of writing SAF members can do to better spread the passion they have their profession.

This series has been a team effort of members of the Rothrock Chapter. As mentioned before, Sandy Smith has taken on the role of sage and tranquil interviewer. Paul Lupo of the PA Game Commission developed and maintains the website for the series. Jared Ernico of ReMax Realty Group helped with the website and creates each of the workshop flyers and advertising. Tracey Coulter of PA DCNR provided excellent ideas for each stage of the workshop, including interview questions and outreach to the presenters. It’s been my pleasure to work with each of them through the entire process, and I look forward to future collaboration with them as part of the Rothrock Chapter Executive Committee.

We invite you all to review the recorded sessions and associated resources at your leisure, all available from the newly created www.RothrockSAF.org. Even if you did not attend the sessions in-person, we invite you to join the Rothrock Writers’ Guild and share your writing, time, and expertise with other forestry writers.

Our next steps for the group will be to arrange a Workshopping session where attendees will share their own writing to each other for review and edit. In addition, our committee will be creating a list of publications and articles we hope guild members will tackle in the coming months and year.
A New Book has been Released

Beneath the Canopy: A Historical View of Forestry in Delaware

by Bob Tjaden and Walt Gabel, both former State Foresters of Delaware.

Bob (right) is a native Delawarean and a forester. With a great appreciation for Delaware’s rich forest history, he wrote this book with the late Walt Gabel (left), so others can realize the value of these forests and have historical information in one publication. They take the reader on a historical journey with photographs and written documents that were gathered from archival documents and interviews that are part of the Delaware Forest Oral History Project.

Delaware’s forests have provided valuable materials for the production and manufacturing of many items. They include ship building, paper making, charcoal production, holly wreath making, wooden basket and shingle manufacturing, gunpowder, pulpwood and lumber. During the 1920’s, Laurel was the largest manufacturer of wooden bushel baskets and crates for fruits and vegetables. In the 1930’s & 40’s, Milton was known as the Holly Wreath capital of the world, shipping Christmas wreaths worldwide. The Pennsylvania Railroad had a special train at Christmas called the “Holly Express” to pick up and deliver wreaths throughout the region. Over the years, foresters, private landowners and forestry organizations have helped protect and manage Delaware’s forests and are highlighted in the book. There is also a chapter dedicated to the Great Cypress Swamp and its’ folklore.

In 1927 the Delaware Forestry Department was established, with William S. Taber as State Forester, to provide leadership for the protection and management of Delaware’s forests. During this time, forest fire lookout towers were erected, State Forests and a State Tree Nursery were established, and a Civilian Conservation Corp (CCC) camp was built at Redden Forest. The reader will also learn the critical role of the Forestry Department and Delaware’s wood products during WW II.

This 420 page book can be purchased on Amazon.com, in a soft cover or BarnesandNoble.com in hard cover. Signed copies of the book (soft or hard cover) can be purchased directly From Bob Tjaden at rjaden1@comcast.net.

Emily Reams – First Susan L. Stout Fellowship Recipient

Emily Reams, the first Susan L. Stout Fellowship recipient at the USDA Forest Service Forestry Sciences Lab in Irvine, PA, completed her fellowship on October 1. During this 12-week fellowship, Emily was deeply immersed in forestry and forest science. She inventoried seedlings in forested sites where experimental treatments such as final harvests and fertilization had occurred, she measured old-growth trees in the Tionesta Research Natural Area, and she job-shadowed with foresters from the Allegheny National Forest, the Pennsylvania DCNR Bureau of Forestry, Generations Forestry and Allegheny Forestry, two private consulting firms based in Kane, PA and Warren, PA respectively, and the Center for Private Forests at Penn State.

Dr. Todd Ristau, Emily’s supervisor for the summer, reported that Emily was a pleasure to work with. “She learned quickly whether it was how to conduct seedling assessments for different studies or recognizing trees, seedlings, and other forest plants. She worked hard and was a real positive asset to the Lab. She was able to get all of my tree and forest related puns and even contributed several herself after a couple weeks on the job.”

Emily enjoyed her work. “The most memorable moment from the summer was seeing a small bear run across the road. When we got out of the truck, Todd cried, ‘Beary! Come back!’ It was an emotional sight to bear.”

She also appreciated the aspect of the fellowship that allowed her to work in a wide variety of different settings. “For my first job shadow, I followed Greg Sanford, of the Allegheny National Forest, to learn about silviculture. He explained the decision-making process for tree regeneration in different areas and introduced me to both the science and protocol involved. Then, with Cecile Stelter, a District Forester from the Bureau of Forestry, I visited a private landowner who is hoping to rejuvenate his forest within a deer fence. I also had the opportunity to follow a forester from Generations Forestry, Jeremy Newman, as he took me along on a timber cruise. Dave Miller, president of Allegheny Forestry, brought me along as he marked trees for a sale, explaining his process for choosing trees and discussing the timber market with me. Finally, I had the opportunity to learn how to grade hardwood lumber and tour the facilities at Danzer Lumber North America Inc., in Bradford, with James Fink, a lumber grader.”

The people whom Emily shadowed were impressed with her work ethic. Jeremy Newman noted that Emily happened to pick the only terrible wet day of the summer and stuck it out in the field. It didn’t phase her. John Saf, a senior forester with Generations Forestry, talked with Reams at the end of that rainy day in the field. He said, “She appeared to be the perfect first Stout intern, very smart with a practical approach to life. Emily has a bright future in front of her.”

Reams was selected as the first recipient of the Stout Fellowship from a nationwide search, conducted by a partnership among the USDA Forest Service, Mobilize Green, a non-profit group organized to recruit high-quality candidates for natural resource “green” jobs, and the Stout Fellowship Committee. One of the objectives of the fellowship is to offer the opportunity to understand forestry as practiced in the special environment of northwestern PA to a wide diversity of people. Emily graduated from The University of Pittsburgh at Bradford in April 2020, with a degree in Environmental Studies. Her senior project was an analysis of 20 years of tree and deer data from the Kinzua Quality Deer Cooperative, and it was through that work and her work as the campus Sustainability Coordinator at Pitt-Bradford that stimulated her interest in forestry.

The Stout Fellowship was created by several of Stout’s colleagues when she retired. Its funds are maintained by the Community Foundation of Warren County, PA. Conservation minded individuals or organizations interested in donating to the Fellowship to support future Fellows may send checks to the foundation at Susan Stout Fellowship c/o The Community Foundation of Warren County, 310 2nd Avenue, Warren, PA 16365, with the check’s memo line indicating “Susan L. Stout Fellowship Fund.” People interested in applying for next summer’s fellowship should contact MobilizeGreen at recruiting@mobilizegreen.org to be notified when the Fellows application opens February 2021.

Celebrating 90 Years with Jack Winieski
By Rachel Reyna, Mike Kusko, and Susan Lacy

Someone to Celebrate:
We are happy to join the celebration of SAF member Jack Winieski’s 90th birthday! When we heard it was his 90th, many of us who know him could not believe that he is 90 – as he continues to be active in so many endeavors. It is particularly appropriate to honor Jack though this publication, as he started the Allegheny News after taking a position as the Allegheny SAF Executive Director many years ago. He wrote, edited, organized, and curated content for this publication for 20 years. Jack: we celebrate you and all the great contributions you have made to SAF over the years!

How Jack got into Forestry:
After finishing high school, Jack joined the Army. He was shipped out to Iwo Jima during the Korean Conflict, where his training in weather school was utilized by assigning him to the Iwo Jima weather station. It was in this weather station that he began to think about the vegetation all around him – and about how it was regenerating after the disturbances caused by World War II. This was the beginning of Jack’s interest in plant establishment and growth. Upon returning to the US after his time in Korea, he used the GI bill to earn a BS from the New York State School of Forestry. He went on to earn a masters degree from the same institution. During his schooling, he focused on his interest in genetics. A forester was born!

Jack’s Career:
Jack got his foot in the door with the PA Bureau of Forestry through a maintenance position, where he worked in the Bureau’s seed orchards. When the Bureau created a Forest Geneticist position, Jack jumped at this opportunity and served in this role until his retirement. During his time with the PA Bureau of Forestry, Jack spearheaded several novel projects. One of which he is particularly proud is creating a procedure for developing genetically superior seed orchards. To accomplish this, he adapted methodology used for Southern Pines to Pennsylvania species. By the time Jack retired, 45% of all seedlings produced in the Bureau’s nurseries came directly from seed produced in their own orchards. This gave the Bureau more control over the genetics of the trees planted out on state lands.

Jack’s Career Advice for Forestry and Natural Resource Students and Young Professionals:
Jack’s primary advice for young people in the forestry professions is to “be professional in everything you do.” Work to find a mentor, someone who conducts themselves professionally and has years of experience in the forestry professions. Effective mentoring relationships can be either formal or informal.

Jack’s Been Busy Since His Retirement:
In addition to having plenty of time to make Platzk, a tasty Polish sweetbread he makes according to his mom’s recipe using his home-grown pecans and hickory nuts, Jack’s retirement allowed him to branch out into other areas of work and service. He spent a few years writing stewardship plans before accepting his position as Executive Director for the Allegheny SAF and being elected SAF Fellow along the way. Jack has shared his talents with other organizations. He has been active in the PA and NY Nut Growers Association (he has his own pecan and hickory orchard of 50 trees), Dillsburg Jaycees, Carroll Township Planning Commission, the Dillsburg Garden Club, local PTAs, Backyard Fruit Growers Association, and the Northern York County Historical and Preservation Society (founding member). And somehow, in the midst of all of these endeavors, Jack found time to be a warm and loving husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather, colleague, and friend.

Thanks, Jack, and Happy Birthday!
Thanks, Jack, for all your contributions to forestry, SAF, and your community! We are beneficiaries of the efforts you have made and we walk the paths you cut through the woods. A hearty happy birthday to you – and many more.

Houseworth Lumber Company in Bedford, PA as a buyer of timber, land, logs, and lumber. He then became director of procurement for the Williamson Veneer Company in New Freedom in 1961 until 1968 when the Evans Products Company acquired Williamson Veneer. Bob became the operations assistant to the general manager and his responsibilities included administration, legal activities, procurement of raw materials, and production. He received the Juris Doctor degree from the University of Baltimore School of Law in 1965.

Bob founded his own consulting business in 1971, known as R.H. Bommer, Jr. Inc., Forest Consultants. He served clients in eastern United States, specializing in forest management, appraisals, marketing, feasibility studies, legal cases, veneer and specialty log procurement, land
