October 2016

Our FIRST Competition

From preparing for Robot Rumble to training the rookies the team has had an eventful month. Everybody from the Mechanical Subgroup to even our Public Relations Subgroup played a crucial role in preparing our trainees and Robot for the upcoming competition.

Rookie Files

In financial this month, I learned a lot about how much goes into this team. I learned how to manage money with a budget and what goes into creating a stable team. Also, I learned about how to figure out what needs to be done to

As project manager, October has been one of our busiest months since competition season last Spring. We have continued work on our T-Shirt make sure we have enough money, including finding ways to make money, and setting up fundraiser. I have already learned so much in financial and it has been about a month. -Nupur Goyle

Bot, a side project for our off season, and used it in our second School Pep Rally of the year. We continued training our team rookies to get them ready for Build Season. We also started tweaking last minute adjustments of 9.0, Stronghold's competition bot, in preparation for Robot Rumble in Hampton Roads this November. We are definitely off to a strong start this fall. - Tia Chrestensen
