WARNINGS

1. A yoni steam should not be done, whether using the Vibrant Souls Devi Steam™ or other yoni steaming herbs, under certain circumstances. Please note the following.
 - a. A user should never do a yoni steam if she knows she is, or thinks she may be, pregnant.

2. Exercise caution at all times to avoid burns during yoni steaming.
 - a. Users should test the temperature of steam with the back of the hand before exposing sensitive vaginal tissue. The yoni steam should feel pleasantly warm, and the user should immediately move away from the steam if it feels too hot.
 - b. Never yoni steam with a continuous heat source.
3. Specific precautions with regard to the Vibrant Souls Yoni Steam Seat:
 - a. It is important that all materials used in conjunction with the yoni steam seat are food-grade.
 - b. All materials should be properly sanitized before and after use.
 - c. User should gently place the basin with hot water and herbs into the bottom of the pail or pot, taking care not to drop the bowl into the basin.
 - d. User should be sure that the yoni steam seat is positioned securely over the pail or pot, fitting all three knobs that are on the underside of the seat securely inside the rim of the container.
 - e. User should be sure that the pot or pail has a flat bottom and is placed safely on a flat, rigid surface. Carpet makes for a slightly unstable surface, and should therefore be avoided.
 - f. User should carefully sit down directly in the middle of the yoni steam seat. User should be careful to not apply pressure to just one side of the yoni steam seat at a time, as this kind of imbalance may cause the seat to topple.
4. Users should contact a licensed health-care provider immediately if a medical problem is suspected.

Liability FAQ

Why should a yoni steam not be done in the case of pregnancy?

Yoni steams encourage the uterine lining to shed any excess build up each month. This is important to note because, in the case of pregnancy, the uterine lining is built up in order to create a nourishing haven for a fertilized egg and growing fetus. Therefore, anything that causes the uterus to contract and cleanse itself, such as a yoni steam, should be avoided so that the lining stays intact.

Why should a yoni steam not be done with an intrauterine device (IUD)?

It is not recommended for women with any kind of IUD to steam because the medicinal properties of the herbs are intended to cause the uterus to contract and shed its lining. When an IUD is present, the risk is that this could cause the uterine tissue to shed or contract in such a way that it could dislodge, shift or expel the IUD.

Why should a yoni steam not be done during menstruation?

During menstruation, the uterus is in its natural process of shedding and releasing. Because this is already an intense, downward moving energy, the added stimulation of a yoni steam may cause heavy bleeding and excess material to flow out. For this reason, it is best to yoni steam on the weeks in which the uterus is in its more restful state.

Why should a yoni steam not be done in the presence of any kind of inflammation or infection?

In general, adding heat and moisture to an infection of any kind is not ideal, and may exacerbate the symptoms or prolong the situation. The two exceptions are in the cases of a yeast infection or bacterial vaginosis, as the anti-microbial properties of the herbs contained in the Devi Steam™ may help to eliminate these types of microbial overgrowth. In this case, users should monitor symptoms carefully to be sure the infection is improving and not worsening.
