J.D. POWER DRIVES EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

A $3 million gift from the 1953 alumnus and market research icon expands real-world opportunities for students, delivering a competitive edge for the road ahead.

“This space and the creative play within blurs boundaries between my artistic practice, renovation projects and mom-life. Material investigations, assemblage and form take shape here — my process paralleling the curiosity and wonder I witness in my son. Every ‘thing’ is a work in progress; always with potential. Every ‘action’ is a learning moment. My home is my studio. My studio is my home.”
