Charge 2016

8 – 10 January, 2016
WEBSITE/PDF/REGISTER

Charge 2016 is a three day convening presented by Art League Houston to 1. platform artist led alternative models of sustainability 2. advocate for equitable compensation for artists 3. consider artists' work in the larger economy.

Charge commissions local and national presenters (artists, curators, organizers, researchers, and educators) to conceive and host discussions, direct actions, lectures and workshops that explore alternative conceptual, organizational, and economic models of sustaining one’s art practice, engaging critically and generatively within the arts ecosystem and broader social contexts, and advocating for equitable compensation along the way.

Charge 2016 will focus on supporting, celebrating and hearing real talk from those who’ve been:

- Intervening in their cities as citizens, artists, and organizers
- Piloting alternative models
- Experimenting imaginatively with how to sustain an art practice
- Intersecting arts and activist communities
- Inspiring the present via historic precedents
- Advancing practices of equitable compensation
- Reflecting how artists’ work ties into the larger economy

Even as our work is used to beautify a city, supplement an industry, provide content for an institution, or convey an idea that shifts our world - the voices of Artists as primary producers, idea creators, and cultural instigators are often excluded from the table.

Being Artists, however:
We've built our own table.

You are invited.

(Supported in 2014 by Fresh Arts)

The Compensation Foundation is an online platform for collecting, sharing, and analyzing how contingent workers are compensated

Please fill out the The Houston Area Artists Report, which focuses on gathering anonymous compensation data directly from individual visual artists. It aims to make evident the current landscape of support for artists while the city of Houston embarks to determine the future of that support.

Charge 2016 is co-organized by Jennie Ash and Carrie Schneider and presented by Art League Houston

Charge is inspired by Valuing Labor in the Arts: A Practicum organized by Helena Keeffe and Shannon Jackson at The Arts Research Center (ARC) at UC Berkeley

The first iteration of Charge took place in November 2014.

Community Partner: Project Row Houses; Media Sponsor: Glasstire; Hotel Sponsor: Hotel ZaZa
