Letitia Huckaby's catalog was designed by Shefon N. Taylor, and features a critical essay by Christopher Blay, writer, and Chief Curator at the Houston Museum of African American Culture in Houston, Texas. Published by Art League Houston, the book was printed in an edition of 300 and was designed in conjunction with Letitia Huckaby's 2022 Texas Artist of the Year exhibition which explores the legacy of Africatown, its founders, and their descendants, with the history of the ship Clotilda and its persistent physical proximity to the community. Major funding for the exhibition and catalog was generously provided by the Jacques Louis Vidal Charitable Fund, Edaren Foundation, Kathrine McGovern Foundation, and Talley Dunn Gallery.

Earlie Hudnall, Jr.’s catalog was published by Art League Houston and designed by HvA Design in conjunction with a survey exhibition of Hudnall's photography as the recipient of ALH's 2022 Lifetime Achievement Award in the Visual Arts. Although widely published throughout his career, this is the first publication that is dedicated solely to Hudnall's work. The catalog was printed in an edition of 300 and includes some of his most celebrated images along with an introductory essay by Anne Wilkes Tucker. Major funding for the exhibition and catalog was generously provided by the Edaren Foundation, Nene Foxhall, Jacques Louis Vidal Charitable Fund, Kathrine McGovern Foundation and Harry & Lynn O’Mealia. Special thanks to Missy Finger, with PDNB Gallery, for her assistance with the catalog and exhibition.

Earlie Hudnall was born and raised in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. His sense of community within his family and that of the African-American culture is what helped shape his work as an artist. Hudnall began photographing while serving as a Marine in the Vietnam War in the 1960’s. In 1968, he relocated to Houston to attend Texas Southern University and received his BA in Art Education. There he found the encouragement to continue photographing his subject matter of the everyday for African-Americans in the South. Hudnall made Houston his permanent home and has been working as the university photographer at Texas Southern University since 1990.

Hudnall is a board member for the Houston Center for Photography and an Executive Board member in the Texas Photographic Society. His work has been influential in the portrayal of the African-American community and culture. The cinematographer, James Laxton, of Academy Award winner for Best Picture in 2017, Moonlight, mentioned Hudnall as visual inspiration on how the film should depict African-Americans both aesthetically and symbolically.

His photographs are in many notable public and private collections across America, including the Smithsonian, Art Institute of Chicago and the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston.

Art League Houston is funded in part by a grant from the City of Houston through the Houston Arts Alliance, Houston Endowment, Inc. Brown Foundation, Inc. Texas Commission on the Arts, and National Endowment for the Arts.
