THE SABIAN SYMBOLS AS THE CODES OF LIFE

History records the sky watchers of the ancient Near East as almost magical in their ability to understand and calculate the rotations of the stars given the technology of the time. Indeed, the most renowned ancient sky watchers, the Sabians, mystery school initiates of modern-day Iraq, possessed tremendous insight into mathematics and celestial tracking.

The Sabians were the intellectual inheritors of an even earlier culture, the Chaldeans. The Sabians and the Chaldeans are referenced variously in ancient texts as “magi” – the wise ones. They were masters of engineering, astronomy, mathematics, geometry, medicine, architecture, philosophy, archetypal mythology, psychology, religion, and harmonics. But they are famed primarily as prodigious observers and scribes of the movements of the stars – astrologers.

Perhaps, above all, they were patient. Celestial data takes time to collect.

The Chaldeans and the Sabians are said to have decoded esoteric, yet predictable signatures that seemed to “underwrite” the 360 degrees of the zodiac and, by proxy, the 360 degrees of a circle. Essentially, they uncovered a “celestial code.”

The ancients noted complexity within the code and began narratives to depict the “traits” of each of the 360 degrees -- the “symbols” or thematic images. They recognized and noted patterns of behavior and events that the code seemed to facilitate or inspire within themselves and the fellowship of humanity, for good or ill, when a planet was located at any given degree of the zodiac. They understood that certain tendencies would be “activated.”

Ancient Near Eastern mythology tells that their gods undertook intensive battles with each other to obtain the divine me. Were the divine me the codes of life (the Sabian symbols) and the charts of timing (an ephemeris or listings of planetary locations) that foretold when the codes would be activated?

Knowledge of this code was a precious thing, as it held the power to “predict” the seemingly innate potential for certain types behaviors or outcomes -- a powerful tool that could be used for domination and control.

Except for select secret societies that branched from Babylonian mystery schools, the notion of a wisdom encoded within the 360 degrees of the zodiac was largely lost to the sands of time.

Until 1925.

In 1925, astrologer Marc Edmund Jones attempted a revival of the forgotten code with the help of a world-famous psychic known to be especially adept at symbology, Elsie Wheeler. Over a long day sitting in Balboa Park, San Diego, California, immersed in the diversity of modern life at the time, Elsie Wheeler randomly “channeled” images for the 360 degrees of the zodiac, and Marc Edmund Jones noted them.

Since then, astrologers have conducted considerable research into the efficacy of the “neo” Sabian symbols, and they have proven true, time and again. In fact, the Sabian symbols are uncannily accurate. They tell us what types of things are more probable at any given time. The symbols inspire Wisdom. Each symbol’s imagery provides the key to opening freewill within energetics that previously seemed solely deterministic. The symbols empower a form of transcendence. They are meaningful, and their objective is deeper understanding.

This book was constructed as a place for the wisdom of the symbols to directly speak to and inspire richness of mind for sky watchers around the world. When we record the experiences, ideas, thoughts, feelings, and inspirations of our lives within the context of the Sabian symbols, it is a different way of reckoning or measuring time. This way provides a context for our experiences unlike any other. It has a distinct way of immersing us in the present moment, in true alignment. The ability to recognize patterns opens opportunities to understand ourselves and for a merger with something greater than ourselves, something sublime. Study of the Sabian symbols can take us there.

The wisdom of the symbols should not be lost again.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

You can use this book however you wish. The purpose is to record thoughts, feelings, ideas, or events (much like a journal) that occur when specific degrees of the zodiac are in effect. As time goes on and the record/journal grows, patterns will emerge. You will see that certain things repeat for you when an energetic is activated. When we see the patterns, we are no longer controlled by the patterns. Instead, we begin to bend the patterns to our will – will aligned with truth and love. We restore the reins of our sovereign creativity and experience.

The pages in this book are purposely unlined so that you can record in any way you want – with drawings or doodles or grouped scribbles or anything. The Sabian symbols are linear only in their sequence.

You may find that you begin to record different types of things than you started out recording. You may expand out to track several planets each day and how those energetics manifested for you. You may want to track world events (which would provide invaluable data). Dreams, animal sightings, information received in meditation, and synchronicities all have a place of record. There is no limit to what this book can hold, as the codes of life pervade All That Is.

The easiest way to start is by going to the page that corresponds with the degree of the Sun that day and start one day at a time, moving one page at a time. You can easily search online for the degree of the Sun or check www.oraclereport.com. Record whatever seems meaningful for you. Your heart will guide you.

The back of the book contains reference material that may mean little to you when you start to record, but one day may be very handy to have all in one place. Wisdom grows with us, and it is my hope that this book grows with you for many years to come.

Sophia acousome. Wisdom let us attend.

HOW TO CALCULATE ASPECTS

STEP 1: MATCH THE NUMBERS

To calculate if a hard aspect is present in a chart, choose a planet and look for any other planets in the chart that match the degree (number) of that planet or are within 3 degrees (plus or minus) of that degree (number).

Example: Venus is located at 13 Gemini. Look for any planet that is between 10 and 16 (13 – 3 = 10 and 13 + 3 = 16)

Traditionally, aspects are calculated within a range of plus or minus (+/-) 3 degrees, though this is not a steadfast rule.*

STEP 2: FIND THE GROUP

Look at the aspects below and see if the planets' signs are grouped together in any of these categories:

♋ CONJUNCTION

beginnings

0 degrees apart; the same degree in the same sign; same place in the sky

♌ SEXTILE

♍ SQUARE

THE CYCLES OF THE SUN AND MOON

PHASE	KEYWORDS	DEGREES on ECLIPTIC
New	begin, intend	0-45
Crescent	perseverance, challenge	45-90
First Quarter	step out, take action	90-135
Gibbous	trust	135-180
Full	clarity, revelation	180-225
Disseminating	communicate, share	225-270
Third Quarter	revise, realign	270-315
Balsamic	release, dream	315-360

TO CALCULATE THE PHASE OF THE MOON

STEP 1: Identify the degree of the Moon and corresponding degree of the ecliptic in parentheses on pages 368-376.

Ex: Moon at 30 Leo “an unsealed letter” (150)

STEP 2: Identify the degree of the Sun and the corresponding degree of the ecliptic in parentheses on pages 368-379.

Ex: Sun at 01 Leo “under emotional stress blood rushes to a man’s head (121)

STEP 3: Subtract the numeral for the ecliptic degree of the Sun from the ecliptic degree of the Moon. Moon Degree of Ecliptic – Sun Degree of Ecliptic = number of degrees apart

Ex: 150 – 121 = 29

STEP 4: Match that answer to the ranges listed in the table above.

Ex: 29 falls in the New phase (0 - 45 degree range) so the Moon is in the New Moon phase

TZOLKIN – THE MAYAN SACRED CALENDAR

The Mayan Sacred Calendar, the Tzolk'in, is a 260-day calendar associated with the Sun. It consists of 13 numbers and 20 signs, giving a total of 260 signs. Days are calculated from sunrise to sunrise. Thus, if someone was born before sunrise, the previous day's date is used with the calculator.
