New York's summer may be winding down, but things are already heating up for December's Miami Art Week. NADA Miami Beach 2014 has released its exhibitor list for the 12th edition, which will run from December 4-7. This year's fair will total 74 galleries, with exhibitors hailing from 34 cities and 18 different countries.

With just a few more than last year's total tally of 70 galleries, this year's fair boasts 15 first timers—many international—including Andersen’s Contemporary (Copenhagen), Aoyama Meguro (Tokyo), HIGH ART (Paris), with Future Gallery (Los Angeles), Chapter NY (New York), and LULU (Mexico City) featured among this year’s 19 projects.

“This year’s program is a testament to the growing international footprint of our organization,” fair director Heather Hubbs told The Observer in an email. “We look forward to presenting our most diverse and dynamic fair to date.”

Some other exciting things to look forward to are solo projects from Bjarne Melgaard (Rod Bianco), Eli Ping (AND NOW), Bas van den Hurk (Rod Barton), Lucy Dodd (David Lewis), Maximilian Schubert (Eli Ping Frances Perkins), and a recreation of Rainer Ganahl’s “El Mundo” (Kai Matsumiya).
