Where dedicated learners become dynamic leaders

KEREN VOLUME 3 Call for papers:

Yeshivat Maharat, an institution dedicated to the training of Orthodox Jewish women to be spiritual leaders and halakhic authorities, is proud to announce the planning for volume 3 of its journal, Keren. Keren is a yearly journal, which publishes essays on a wide range of halakhic and hashkafic topics of interest to the Orthodox community and the Jewish community at large.

Volume 3 will be dedicated to the topic of tefillah, and will have both a halakha as well as an aggada section. In recognition that one of the most difficult rituals is davening, we would like to open up an honest conversation about the beauty and challenges of prayer in the 21st century. You may choose to address a complex legal matter or a personal spiritual matter. All papers will be reviewed by members of the editorial board and/or qualified outside readers.

Guidelines:

Papers should be written with footnotes in academic style, with original language citations included when possible in a side by side table. For a style sheet for citations and transliterations, please contact the editor(s).

Submissions are due before January 1st 2015. Submissions should be emailed as a Word file as well as in PDF form to the editors at keren@yeshivatmaharat.org. The PDF should not include the author's name to allow for anonymous reviewing if necessary.
