Press Release

*Sydney, Australia
November 2015*

HoustonKemp is pleased to announce, Daniel Young, has recently joined its fraternity as a Senior Economist. Daniel has over ten years' experience in a wide range of industries and across an array of regulatory and competition matters. .

Daniel's most recent work has focused on the design of cost models for application to fixed line and mobile networks, the analysis of competition issues and the calculation of damages in Australia and New Zealand. His analysis has underpinned a number of successful Competition Tribunal appeals as well as furthering the regulatory debate on rate of return issues.

Adrian Kemp, Partner and co-founder of HoustonKemp states 'Daniel is an exciting and welcome addition to our team. His mathematics and statistics background compounds the strong foundation of talent we have built at HoustonKemp and I look forward to his contributions, particularly in relation to the evolving methods of valuing the cost of debt and equity. Daniel's appointment fundamentally increases our commercial and strategic capabilities throughout Asia Pacific.'

Daniel comments, 'I am excited to join with many of my former colleagues in this thriving venture and look forward to collaborating on the wide range of projects in which HoustonKemp are presently involved. The team has firmly established itself as the market leader in the last eighteen months and I am thrilled to be a part of the ongoing HoustonKemp growth story.'

Daniel was previously an Associate Director at the Competition Economists Group and holds a Master of Commerce as well as Bachelor degrees in Commerce and Science from the University of Auckland.

Daniel will be presenting at HoustonKemp's cost of capital seminar on Thursday 12th November 2015. Click here for more details.

About HoustonKemp

HoustonKemp (www.houstonkemp.com) is an economic consulting firm specialising in the application of economics in order to bring clarity to complex problems that arise in the fields of competition, finance, policy and regulation.

Our economic consultants have significant, long term experience in assisting high stakes decision-making through the use of evidence-based economic analysis that is focused, accessible and capable of withstanding the most intense scrutiny. We work across a wide range of industry sectors and our clients include corporations, governments, trade associations, and law firms engaged in commercial and criminal litigation.
