This season we've taken inspiration from our natural surroundings with a focus on classic lines, natural fibres and earthy, muted tones.

Plucked from the Australian landscape, this seasons new colours include Granite, Ink and Mist all of which make appearances in our latest bed linen collections and some of our beloved favourites.

The newest addition direct from Iceland are our collection of Icelandic Sheepskins; beautifully primitive and each one unique in appearance.

With beautiful fine count bed linen, quilted silk throws, velvet comforters and Turkish bath linen, we've crafted a range of soft furnishings that are classic and timeless, that can be mixed, matched and layered; allowing you to create your own five star style and comfort.

Discover the pleasure of Flaxfield Linen, resort styled bed linen for your home.

Not all thread counts are created equal. Thread count is a measure of the coarseness or fineness of a fabric and is determined by counting the number of threads contained in a square inch of fabric, or in Australasia in a 10cm square. When determining thread count, the correct industry standard is to count each thread only once. In a plied yarn several threads are twisted together to make a single thread and if each thread is individually counted it can lead to an inflated and misleading thread count. Feel assured Flaxfield Linen, will only ever quote the true thread count of our fabric, so you can be certain that the quality you expect is exactly what you will receive.

Direct from Iceland our Flaxfield Linen Icelandic Sheepskins exhibit a very long woolen coat comprised of two layers; a longer outer layer and a shorter, inner layer. The outer woolen layer is up to 28cm in length with a slight roughness that gives the sheepskins a particularly beautiful and primitive appearance; a true modern décor essential.
